

Dennis Mullen, General Counsel, Indiana Gaming Commission

Dennis Mullen is the General Counsel for the Indiana Gaming Commission (IGC). In that role, he provides legal counsel to an agency that regulates casino gaming, sports wagering, paid fantasy sports contests, charity gaming, and boxing and mixed martial arts, and which contributes approximately $520M in wagering tax, $40M in supplemental tax, and $25M in sports wagering tax into state and local funds. The IGC has a staff of almost 250 employees, including 170 certified law enforcement officers. Before assuming his current role, Dennis served the IGC as its Director of Sports Wagering and Paid Fantasy Sports and helped manage the launch and regulation of those activities in the state.

Dennis began his career as a Deputy Attorney General for the State of Indiana, providing legal representation on behalf of the State of Indiana, its agencies, elected officials and employees in litigation filed in Indiana state and federal courts.

Dennis holds a J.D. from the IU McKinney School of Law and a B.A. from DePauw University in Greencastle, Indiana. He was recognized by Global Gaming Business Magazine in 2018 as one of the “40 under 40” emerging leaders in gaming.