Professor Keri Donohue

Professor Donohue graduated from the University of Scranton and earned her J.D. from the University of Pittsburgh School of Law in 1998. She began her legal career in civil litigation at McDermott & McGee in New Jersey, handling a broad range of insurance defense matters, including products liability, construction defects, and personal injury cases. After relocating to California in 2003, she focused on asbestos litigation in state and federal courts, including the Asbestos Multidistrict Litigation in Pennsylvania. She currently represents plaintiffs in personal injury matters and clients in special education proceedings before New Jersey administrative courts. During law school, Professor Donohue clerked for a United States Magistrate Judge, an experience that inspired her interest in trial practice. She is admitted to practice in New Jersey, New York, and California.
