Khalil Wilkes was born and raised in Teaneck, New Jersey and attended St. Peter's Prep High School in Jersey City, NJ. Khalil excelled as a student athlete and earned a football scholarship to Stanford University.

At Stanford, Khalil received All-Pac 12 honors and competed in 4 BCS bowl games, winning a Rose Bowl and Orange Bowl alongside teammates Richard Sherman and Andrew Luck.

After a brief professional career in the NFL with the San Diego Charger, Khalil transitioned from a professional athlete to a sports/entertainment law professional. He graduated from Villanova School of Law and is currently barred as an attorney in the state of NJ. In his current role as Business and Legal Affairs Executive for WME Sports, Khalil negotiated sports marketing contracts for WME Sports' clients and manages WME Sports' NIL practice.
