

Corbin Evans

Sr. Director of Congressional and Federal Relations American Psychological Association

Corbin Evans serves as a Senior Director of Congressional and Federal Relations at the American Psychological Association where he focuses on applied psychology issues such as human technology interaction, the future of work, and climate change. He previously served in national security policy roles. He received a Juris Doctor at George Washington University Law School and holds a Master of Business Administration and a Master of Public Policy from the University of Missouri. Corbin is a member of the District of Columbia Bar.