Daniel is a senior member of the Daiichi Sankyo U.S. Compliance Department with broad experience in healthcare compliance, internal investigations, data privacy, and related legal and regulatory matters. He leads the internal investigations program for Daiichi Sankyo, Inc. and American Regent, Inc. and serves as DSI's Data Privacy Officer. His responsibilities include overseeing investigations of reported concerns, developing investigation policies and protocols, and partnering with Legal, Human Resources, management, and other functions on potential violations of law, policy, and ethical standards. In his privacy role, Daniel leads DSI's data privacy program, including development of privacy policies and procedures, training, data mapping, incident response, and advising on data protection requirements. He also advises on emerging compliance and technology risks on the responsible use of artificial intelligence.

Before joining Daiichi Sankyo, Daniel was an associate at McElroy Deutsch, where his practice included complex commercial litigation and internal investigations across the healthcare, pharmaceutical, medical device, financial, and construction industries, including matters involving government enforcement and healthcare compliance. Earlier in his career, he served as a law clerk to the Hon. Katherine R. Dupuis, J.S.C. of the Superior Court of New Jersey.

Daniel earned his J.D. from Rutgers University School of Law - Newark and his B.S. in Law & Justice from The College of New Jersey. He holds the CIPP/US, CIPP/E, and CIPM privacy credentials and is a graduate of Seton Hall Law School's Healthcare Compliance Certificate Program. His professional development also includes specialized training in investigative methods and interviewing techniques.
