Gregory Paw

Partner

Freeh, Sporkin & Sullivan

Greg Paw is an accomplished trial lawyer with extensive white collar investigation experience. A former federal prosecutor and past director of the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice, he now is a partner with Freeh, Sporkin & Sullivan. Drawing on his unique international law enforcement work investigating regime war crimes in Iraq, he now provides the benefit of his experience in criminal litigation and knowledge of international compliance and integrity to advise clients on enforcement and compliance issues arising in international business. Clients have described him as “exceptional” and a “very effective communicator” who is “practical” and “unflappable.”

In recent years, Mr. Paw has served as counsel on a wide array of special investigations along with Louis J. Freeh, the former Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Mr. Paw also has led global engagements where he has implemented, evaluated, and improved compliance and risk management programs for multi-national companies. For example, he recently successfully guided a multi-national medical device company through federal monitorships under the Anti-Kickback Statute and FCPA, and designed effective and best-in-class compliance remediations across Latin America. He also has served as legal counsel to a court-appointed monitor of Daimler/Mercedes-Benz, evaluating and reviewing the company's world-wide anti-corruption efforts. In this role, he engaged in extensive evaluation work in Latin America, Europe, and Asia; is advising a prominent international developer concerning sanctions imposed by the U.S. Office of Foreign Assets Control and current criminal investigations in the United States and United Kingdom; is reviewing compliance controls at a multinational oil & gas company and advocating for the company before the U.K. Serious Fraud Office; provided legal counsel to the Special Master appointed by the U.S. District Court in Louisiana, providing guidance to the investigation of allegations of improper conduct and false claims filed in the BP Deepwater Horizon claims settlement process—the largest court-supervised settlement program in U.S history; served as legal counsel to an investigation of a major university in the wake of a former coach being charged with crimes against children, preparing a report that has been called a "landmark" for issues of university governance; and investigated corruption allegations concerning a former member of FIFA's executive committee, who was banned for life from all FIFA and football-related activities by an action of the FIFA Ethics Committee.

Mr. Paw served as a federal prosecutor in the Philadelphia U.S. Attorney's Office from 1997 to 2006. He also volunteered to serve in Iraq from 2004 to 2005, as deputy chief of the team of U.S. prosecutors and investigators tasked to help the Iraqi government in the prosecution of former senior Iraqi officials with war crimes and crimes against humanity. He also served as the director of the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice, supervising a state-wide law enforcement office composed of prosecutors and investigators.

Prior to joining the Justice Department, Mr. Paw served as a special counsel to the U.S. House of Representatives investigation concerning alleged misconduct during the 1980 Presidential election. He also served as special counsel to an Independent Counsel's investigation of alleged misconduct during the 1992 Presidential election.

Mr. Paw is admitted to practice in New Jersey, New York, and the District of Columbia. He obtained his law degree from the College of William & Mary, and his undergraduate degree from the University of Illinois. He served as a judicial clerk for the Honorable Walter E. Hoffman, U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia.

Mr. Paw is a trustee at the Moorestown Friends School, a Quaker-based institution. He also serves on the finance committee of the Forman S. Acton Educational Foundation, which advances educational opportunities for students in Salem, New Jersey.
