Hannah Bradshaw is a compliance, investigations and disputes lawyer based in Dubai. She advises both individual and corporate clients on a wide range of regulatory and compliance issues. She has experience dealing with regulators and advising on and conducting internal investigations on behalf of local and multinational clients. She has particular experience acting for life sciences and health care companies in the Middle East and a broad range of investment firms.

Ms. Bradshaw has advised senior management on their regulatory duties and represented firms and individuals under investigation by different regulators including the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ), the UK Financial Conduct Authority, the UK Competition and Markets Authority, and the Dubai International Financial Services Authority.

Ms. Bradshaw trained as a solicitor in London and practiced as a commercial and criminal litigator before moving to Dubai. Prior to becoming a solicitor, she spent a number of years working as a compliance consultant in the UK.

Ms. Bradshaw's representative experience includes acting as external counsel for all Middle East and North Africa internal investigations for a global health care conglomerate, advising a global pharmaceutical and medical device company on the creation of a global remedial action plan following investigations into alleged Foreign Corrupt Practices Act violations by the SEC and DOJ, and leading an internal investigation for a multinational health care company on a consultancy agreement based in the Middle East.
