Kelly Hagedorn

Partner

Alston & Bird LLP (London, UK)

kelly.hagedorn@alston.com

Kelly leverages her significant enforcement background to help clients mitigate risk under UK and EU data protection laws and support global clients on regulatory issues involving data privacy regulation and litigation.

Kelly Hagedorn defends clients in regulatory investigations and disputes and helps clients navigate the evolving field of cyber, privacy, and online safety.

Kelly is highly skilled at developing risk-based solutions for clients, both proactively and during a crisis. She regularly counsels clients on the UK and EU GDPR and develops data protection compliance programs and policies and tools to track and prevent the dissemination of harmful or illegal content online. She also advises clients on incident response, as well as white-collar investigations, litigation, and parliamentary investigations – particularly those involving data breaches, fraud and financial crimes, and securities laws.

Earlier in her career, Kelly undertook secondments to the Serious Fraud Office and a major telecommunications company, where she helped develop and implement the company's anti-bribery compliance program.

Kelly has been named in Global Data Review's inaugural "40 Under 40" list of the best and brightest upcoming data lawyers.
