Seth Lundy represents prominent medical device and pharmaceutical companies and health care providers, suppliers, and distributors in complex legal and regulatory matters and investigations. As Deputy Chair of the firm's FDA and Life Sciences practice, identified by Law360 as Life Sciences Group of the Year for 2016, he is widely recognized as a leading national authority on compliance with federal and state fraud and abuse laws. His practical, business-oriented approach earns accolades from sources including Chambers USA, Best Lawyers, and Super Lawyers.

Mr. Lundy's in-depth understanding of the industry allows him to work seamlessly with boards of directors, C-suite management, legal departments, compliance offices, and operational divisions. He designs compliance programs; helps clients ensure that operations meet changing standards; defends clients in government investigations; performs internal audits; conducts corporate due diligence; and engages in civil, criminal, and administrative litigation.

Mr. Lundy is experienced in working with federal regulators and legislators to create, revise, and interpret health care-related laws, regulations, and policies. He also develops business and marketing strategies that respond to ever-changing federal regulatory schemes.

A frequent author and speaker on health care compliance and investigations, Mr. Lundy works to help clients to identify and predict burgeoning areas of enforcement. He has been recognized since 2008 as a top Washington, D.C. health care lawyer by Chambers USA. He has also received recognition as a leading health care lawyer from Expert Guides, Guide to the Leading Healthcare Lawyers, Super Lawyers Washington, D.C., Best Lawyers, and Washingtonian Magazine's Top Lawyers rankings.

Mr. Lundy received his B.A., cum laude, from Amherst College and his J.D., with honors, from George Washington University.
