

Hot Topics in Life Sciences Law

Speaker Biographies

Kendall Burman

*Counsel
Mayer Brown*

Kendall Burman is a Cybersecurity & Data Privacy counsel in the firm's Washington D.C. office. She advises a broad range of clients, including financial services and technology companies, on legal, regulatory, and policy issues involving emerging technologies, security, privacy, and the flow of information across borders. Her practice focuses on advising clients on their privacy and data security policies and practices, including advising companies on how to develop their information programs in ways that comply with the law and industry best practices. She also advises and advocates for clients on new and complex policy and compliance issues involving big data, artificial intelligence, and other technologies.

Prior to joining Mayer Brown, Ms. Burman served in variety of roles in public service and in the nonprofit sector. Most recently, she served as Deputy General Counsel for the U.S. Department of Commerce, where she developed and executed the department's priorities in areas such as cybersecurity and privacy. In her role, she worked with U.S. companies to engage with the European Union over the Safe Harbor framework and development of the new Privacy Shield. Previously, she served as Special Assistant to the President and Associate White House Counsel. In between her time in the administration, Ms. Burman worked as a senior national security fellow for the Center for Democracy and Technology, where she focused on reforming the Electronic Communications Privacy Act. She also served as senior staff counsel for President Obama's 2008 presidential campaign, where she managed a team of in-house attorneys to support the campaign's political, financial, and messaging goals. She is a Cybersecurity Fellow at the New America Foundation, where one of her areas of emphasis is attracting more women to the field of cybersecurity.

Since returning to private practice, Ms. Burman has received recognitions from Washingtonian magazine ("Top Lawyer"), National Law Journal ("Cybersecurity and Data Privacy Trailblazer"), and Law 360 ("Rising Star").

Marcus Christian

*Partner
Mayer Brown*

Marcus Christian is a Washington D.C. partner in Mayer Brown's Litigation & Dispute Resolution practice and White Collar Defense & Compliance group. He also is a member of the firm's Cybersecurity & Data Privacy practice.

Since joining Mayer Brown in 2013, Mr. Christian has been recognized for his work in cybersecurity incident response and preparation. In 2016 and 2018, he was named to Cybersecurity Docket's "Incident Response 30," recognizing “the 30 best and brightest data breach response lawyers.” In December 2017, he was named to Washingtonian magazine’s list of “Best Lawyers” for cybersecurity.

Speaker Biographies

Before entering private practice, Mr. Christian was the Executive Assistant United States Attorney at the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Southern District of Florida, the third-highest ranking position in one of America's largest and busiest offices of federal prosecutors. Among other things, he oversaw a number of identity theft task forces, maintained critical incident response readiness, and supervised investigations and prosecutions of crimes related to data breaches. He developed strong working relationships with members of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the United States Secret Service, and other agencies that investigate computer and data crimes. He also held a top secret security clearance.

Prior to joining the U.S. Attorney's Office, Mr. Christian was the chief of staff for U.S. Representative Peter Deutsch of Florida's 20th Congressional District. Mr. Christian joined the congressman after working for TSIC, Inc., a statewide nonprofit organization that provides full-tuition, four-year college scholarships to thousands of Florida's low-income students. At TSIC, he served as chief operating officer and legal counsel and later as president. Earlier in his career, he was selected by the Attorney General's Honors Program. He began his legal career as a law clerk for Judge H. Robert Mayer of the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Christian is a graduate of Yale Law School and earned his undergraduate degree at Williams College. He also received a graduate degree from the University of Oxford, where he studied as a Rhodes Scholar.

Rajesh De

Partner

Mayer Brown

Raj De is a partner in Mayer Brown's Washington D.C. office and leads the firm's global Cybersecurity & Data Privacy practice. He is also co-leader of the firm's National Security practice group, and a member of the firm's Congressional Investigations & Crisis Management team. After nearly two decades in private practice and public service across all three branches of the United States government, he is one of the most trusted voices in Washington. He has held senior appointments in the White House, the Department of Justice (DOJ) and the Department of Defense. He returned to Mayer Brown in 2015, after serving as General Counsel at the United States National Security Agency (NSA). Since returning to the firm, he has received numerous recognitions, including by American Lawyer (“Lateral All-Star”), Washingtonian magazine (“Top Lawyer”), National Law Journal (“Cybersecurity and Data Privacy Trailblazer”), and Cybersecurity Docket (“Incident Response 30”).

Mr. De focuses his practice on cutting-edge legal and policy issues at the nexus of technology, national security, law enforcement, and privacy, including strategic cybersecurity counseling and related representation. Specifically, he advises companies as they anticipate threats, assists them as they comply with data security and privacy requirements, and represents them as they address cyber vulnerabilities and breaches, as well as associated regulatory, litigation, and reputational consequences. Under his leadership, the firm's global and multidisciplinary Cybersecurity & Data Privacy practice addresses the full array of issues facing multinational businesses, including security breach preparation and response; data privacy and security litigation; strategic counseling and board governance; supply chain and vendor management, including in government contracting; legislative advocacy; and regulatory and compliance.

As General Counsel of the NSA, Mr. De served as the agency's chief legal officer and senior advisor to the NSA Director. Mr. De supervised an office of approximately 100 lawyers and staff that handled litigation and provided legal advice across a range of issue areas, including foreign intelligence, cybersecurity, government contracts, intellectual property, research and technology, administrative law, government ethics, and pending legislation. As a member of the NSA's senior leadership team, he represented the agency regularly with senior officials across the executive branch, as well as before the United States Congress, the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court, and European and other foreign governments.

Prior to his service at the NSA, Mr. De served in the White House as Staff Secretary and Deputy Assistant to the President of the United States. In that capacity, Mr. De was responsible for managing all written material provided to the President. Prior to Mr. De's White House role, he served as Principal Deputy Assistant Attorney General in the Office of Legal Policy at the Department of Justice. In that capacity, he worked closely with the Attorney General and senior DOJ leadership, litigating components and enforcement agencies on policy development and implementation across subject areas that included civil rights, criminal justice, national security, and civil litigation. Mr. De started his career at DOJ, where he was a trial lawyer in the Antitrust Division under the Attorney General's Honors Program.

Mr. De has also had significant congressional experience over the course of his career. He served as Counsel to the National Commission on Terrorist Attacks Upon the United States (the "9/11 Commission"), conducting scores of interviews with United States government and foreign officials and drafting sections of the 9/11 Commission's widely-recognized final public report. After his service to the 9/11 Commission, he served as Counsel to a special bipartisan staff of the United States Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs, where he was a primary drafter and negotiator of the intelligence reform legislation that implemented the 9/11 Commission's recommendations for the appointment of a Director of National Intelligence and the establishment of a National Counterterrorism Center. During his earlier time as a partner at Mayer Brown, Mr. De served on a pro bono basis as General Counsel to the Commission on the Prevention of Weapons of Mass Destruction Proliferation and Terrorism, a bipartisan blue-ribbon panel charged with making recommendations to the President and Congress.

Today, Mr. De serves in various roles that build upon his Washington legal and policy experience, including Senior Advisor, Homeland Security & Defense Business Council; Member, Aspen Homeland Security Group; Board of Directors, The Constitution Project; Board of Advisors, NYU School of Law Center on Law and Security; Distinguished Senior Fellow, Cyber Governance, NYU School of Law Center on Law and Security; and Member, Central Intelligence Agency General Counsel's External Advisory Board.

Mr. De has received a number of honors for his public service, including U.S. Attorney General's John Marshall Award (Outstanding Legal Achievement for Preparing or Handling Legislation); Department of Defense Medal for Distinguished Civilian Service, awarded by the Secretary of Defense; National Intelligence Distinguished Service Medal, awarded by the Director of National Intelligence; National Security Agency Director's Distinguished Service Medal; and National Security Agency Intelligence Under Law Award.

Earlier in his career, Mr. De clerked for the Honorable A. Wallace Tashima of the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit in Pasadena, California. He graduated magna cum laude from both Harvard Law School and Harvard College.

Elizabeth Feeney

*Assistant General Counsel, Dispute Resolution & Prevention, and Global Chair of Legal Inclusion & Diversity
GlaxoSmithKline*

Elizabeth Feeney is an Assistant General Counsel in GSK's Dispute Resolution & Prevention group. She is responsible for managing a wide portfolio of litigation matters, including commercial, securities, and product liability cases. She also leads investigations throughout the world pertaining to the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act and works with local markets to strengthen compliance with GSK's Anti-Bribery/Anti-Corruption policies and procedures. She is GSK Legal's delegate to the global "InfoProtect" program, charged with improving security behaviors and processes across the company. She recently completed a two-year tenure as GSK's lead digital lawyer.

Additionally, Ms. Feeney is the Global Chair of GSK Legal's Inclusion & Diversity Steering Team, focused on increasing the numbers of women and minorities in leadership positions.

Ms. Feeney received an undergraduate degree in Art History from Williams College and a J.D. from the University of Michigan Law School.

Lisa M. Ferri

*Partner
Mayer Brown*

Lisa Ferri is a partner in New York and co-lead of Mayer Brown's Intellectual Property practice. She serves as lead trial and appellate counsel on behalf of high-profile companies in the pharmaceutical, biotechnology, and medical device industries. She is a seasoned and versatile litigator, having tried high-stakes cases in federal courts across the country and the International Trade Commission, argued before the Patent Trial and Appeal Board (PTAB), and the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals. She has significant expertise guiding companies through patent challenges under the Hatch-Waxman Act and Biologics Price Competition and Innovation Act.

Ms. Ferri has been recognized by clients and peers as a leading lawyer in intellectual property. She was named one of the "Top 250 Women in IP" by Managing Intellectual Property each year since the list's inception in 2013, and was named a leading lawyer in Who's Who Legal: Patents 2016 and 2017. She was recognized by IAM Patent 1000 as "spectacular . . . [she] demonstrates a lot of powerful qualities as a patent litigator" and is "extremely persuasive." She was named a "Life Sciences Star" and an "IP Star" by the Legal Media Group, which noted that "Lisa is professional, intelligent, people savvy, tough when need be, and has a great command of the applicable law." She was nominated in 2014 as "Hatch-Waxman Litigator of the Year" by the LMG Life Sciences Awards. In addition, she has been recognized in the area of patent litigation by the Legal 500. Her recent victory at the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals in Biogen IDEC, Inc. and Genentech v. GlaxoSmithKline, which involved the monoclonal antibody therapy Arzerra®, was shortlisted for "Patent Impact Case of the Year" by the LMG Life Sciences Awards.

Ms. Ferri's life sciences practice spans a broad range of therapeutic areas and technologies—from pharmaceuticals and biologics for the treatment of HIV/AIDS, cancer, hepatitis, influenza, auto-immunities, anemia, emesis and BPH, to drug delivery systems, research tools, recombinant DNA, RNAi, and a variety of medical devices. Her pharmaceutical practice focuses on representing innovator companies in cases brought pursuant to the Hatch-Waxman Act. She has successfully defended a number of key blockbuster drugs. Following enactment of the AIA, she handled one of the first co-pending inter partes reviews and district court litigations relating to the Orange Book listed drug Lexiva®, which was the first "lead compound" IPR before the PTAB as well. She also concentrates on patent litigation dealing with large molecule biologics products, including a series of antibody litigations involving the well-known "Cabilly" patent portfolio.

Ms. Ferri is an adjunct professor at Fordham University School of Law, where she teaches Patent Litigation. She also serves as co-chair of the firm's global Women's Leadership Committee.

Timothy Glynn

*Senior Associate Dean and Andrea J. Catania Endowed Professor of Law
Seton Hall University School of Law*

Professor Timothy Glynn specializes in employment and corporate law, and the intersection between these two areas. Since joining Seton Hall in 1999, he has taught various corporate- and employment-law courses, as well as first-year Civil Procedure and Torts. He also has created and taught online courses addressing legal issues and compliance in the workplace, the laws governing whistleblowing, and internal investigations. In 2016, he was named the Andrea J. Catania Endowed Professor of Law.

Professor Glynn was appointed Associate Dean in 2015, and now serves as a Senior Associate Dean. In this role, he oversees various aspects of the law school's J.D. program. He also oversees Seton Hall's Master of Science in Jurisprudence (MSJ) and online graduate certificate programs in financial services compliance, and health care, pharmaceutical, and intellectual property law. In addition, he supervises the law school's six live healthcare compliance certificate programs in the United States, Europe, Latin America, and Asia.

Professor Glynn's scholarship focuses on enforcement mechanisms in employment and corporate law, the allocation of decision-making authority and legal accountability within the corporation, and the impact of enterprise structures on legal protections and legal compliance. In addition, he has written on the troubling implications of school ranking systems. He is a co-author of leading employment and labor law casebooks, Employment Law: Private Ordering and Its Limitations (3rd ed. 2015) (with Charles Sullivan and Rachel S. Arnow-Richman); and Cox and Box's Labor Law: Cases and Materials (16th ed. 2016) (with Robert A. Gorman and Matthew W. Finkin). He has published numerous articles addressing issues in employment and corporate law, and frequently presents on these and other legal topics to professional and academic organizations. Moreover, along with Professor Charles Sullivan, Professor Glynn founded the Seton Hall Employment & Labor Law Junior Scholars Forum in 2006, and continues to host it annually.

Professor Glynn received his B.A., magna cum laude, from Harvard University, and his J.D., magna cum laude, from the University of Minnesota Law School, where he served as Editor-in-Chief of the Minnesota Law Review. He clerked for the Honorable Donald P. Lay, United States Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit. Professor Glynn then practiced law as an associate at the firm of Leonard, Street and Deinard in Minneapolis, Minnesota, focusing in the areas of securities, business, and employment litigation. Prior to joining Seton Hall, he again served as a judicial clerk, this time for the Honorable John R. Tunheim, United States District Court for the District of Minnesota.

Marcia E. GoodmanPartnerMayer Brown*

Marcia Goodman primarily represents global employers on a wide range of U.S. and cross-border employment law matters. In addition, she co-leads the firm's Japan Client Initiative, a program aimed at strengthening and expanding Mayer Brown's ability to serve Japanese clients.

Since 2017, Ms. Goodman has actively engaged with clients across the board around the risk and actuality of "#Me, Too" claims and the "#Me, Too" environment. For many years, she has defended employers in federal class claims of race, age, sex, disability, national origin discrimination under EEO laws (e.g., reductions in force, promotions, sexual harassment, discriminatory terms, and conditions of employment), and in pattern and practice discrimination claims by the EEOC. She also defends employers in litigation involving individual claims, such as discrimination, competition, whistleblower claims, under the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, employment contracts, defamation, fraud, FMLA actions, wage and hour issues, independent contractor/employee status, and misappropriation of trade secrets.

Colleen Tracy JamesPartnerMayer Brown*

Representing companies in the Life Sciences Industry, Colleen Tracy James focuses her practice on patent infringement litigation, USPTO Patent Trial and Appeal Board proceedings, and other complex intellectual property litigation. She has extensive experience litigating against generic pharmaceutical companies in matters brought under the Hatch-Waxman Act (ANDA litigation) in federal district courts across the U.S. and the Federal Circuit. Many pharmaceutical companies have entrusted her to handle litigations that involve their billion dollar a year products and bet the company cases. She also provides her clients with an array of intellectual property patent services such as freedom to operate opinions and licensing and due diligence advice, among others.

Whether she is handling a high-stakes patent litigation or engaged in IP counseling, due diligence or licensing, Ms. James is known for being organized, efficient, cool under pressure, and an exceptional communicator. Her skill and dedication in preparing witnesses for depositions has, time and again, allowed her to achieve outcomes that met or exceeded client expectations.

Above all, Ms. James puts a premium on listening to her clients and building consensus among stakeholders so that she can craft strategies that respond directly to the client's legal and business needs.

According to Legal 500 US, "Colleen Tracy attracted client praise for her 'overall depth of knowledge, dogged advocacy, and unfailing attentiveness to details of concern to the client.'" She was recognized as a "Life Science Star" in the 2018 edition of Euromoney's Legal Media Group (LMG) Life Sciences, has been recognized as an "IP Star" by Managing Intellectual Property since 2014, and was also recognized as one of the "Top 250 Women in IP" by Managing Intellectual Property in 2018. She was selected as a top intellectual property law practitioner in the 2011-2018 editions of Best Lawyers in America. She was also named a 2013 "Woman Worth Watching" by Profiles in Diversity Journal.

While in law school, Ms. James served as a student law clerk to the Honorable William G. Bassler of the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey. Prior to joining Mayer Brown, she was managing partner at another prominent law firm in New York for five years.

Stephen LilleyPartnerMayer Brown*

Stephen Lilley is a partner in the firm's Washington D.C. office. He focuses his practice on helping clients navigate cutting-edge and interrelated litigation, regulatory, and policy challenges. A member of the firm's Supreme Court & Appellate practice, he briefs complex appeals and dispositive motions, and develops strategies to manage legal risks and to shape regulatory policy across a broad range of substantive areas. He frequently litigates and advises clients on cybersecurity and data privacy, and consumer financial services matters. He is widely recognized for his cybersecurity law and policy experience. Mr. Lilley co-authored the firm's guides on Cybersecurity Regulation and Cyber Incident Response, and served as a member of the Center for Strategic & International Studies Cyber Policy Task Force as it developed cybersecurity recommendations for the administration.

Before joining Mayer Brown, Mr. Lilley worked for the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee as Chief Counsel to the Subcommittee on Crime and Terrorism, where he had a particular focus on cybersecurity. He clerked for Judge Thomas Ambro on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit and Judge Jeremy Fogel on the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California.

A summa cum laude graduate of Princeton University, Mr. Lilley received his law degree from Yale Law School, where he served as a Senior Editor of the Yale Law Journal.

Brian W. NolanPartnerMayer Brown*

Brian Nolan is a member of the Intellectual Property group at Mayer Brown. He focuses his practice on intellectual property litigation, counseling, and due diligence in the areas of patent, trade secret, unfair competition, antitrust, trademark, counterfeit goods, and copyright law. LMG Life Sciences recognized him as a "Life Sciences Star" and according to IAM 1000, "[Brian] Nolan is a key asset to the firm, given his wealth of pharmaceutical and biotechnology litigation expertise and ability to cross over seamlessly into other fields such as semiconductors and information technology."

Mr. Nolan has acted as lead trial counsel and appellate counsel on numerous matters covering all aspects of intellectual property protection. He has participated in several district court trials, ITC investigations, USPTO Inter Partes Review, and appellate proceedings relating to a wide range of technologies, including monoclonal antibodies, pharmaceuticals, receptor pharmacology, medical devices, biotechnology, medical imaging technology, crystal growth, semiconductors, laser diodes, building products, data capture systems, and computer storage systems. He has experience counseling clients concerning their biological products, including working to develop strategies to allow for introduction of new biologics to the marketplace and seeking to protect existing biologics from potential biosimilars competition. Additionally, he has experience litigating cases brought under the Hatch-Waxman statute and counseling innovator pharmaceutical companies regarding their patent portfolios and potential generic competition prior to patent expiry.

Mr. Nolan regularly counsels investment companies concerning acquisitions in which the buyer's valuation is driven by IP assets. He works with public and private companies to develop patent strategies to enhance overall value. He often advises on M&A, capital markets, and other corporate transactions, including joint ventures, private equity, venture capital, and hedge fund transactions.

Mr. Nolan has acted as an adjunct professor of law at Fordham University School of Law, where he taught a course on patent litigation for many years. He speaks and writes on intellectual property issues at many events and in various publications. News organizations often seek his views on current intellectual property issues.

David Opderbeck

*Professor of Law & Co-Director of the Gibbons Institute of Law, Science & Technology
Seton Hall University School of Law*

David Opderbeck is Professor of Law and Co-Director of the Gibbons Institute of Law, Science & Technology. His work focuses on intellectual property, cybersecurity, and technology law and policy. His publications concerning cybersecurity law and policy consider the law and economics of data breach litigation and executive power in cyber emergencies. He recently administered a multi-year project at the Law School funded by the Bergen County Prosecutor's Office that convened special programs and government working groups on cybersecurity issues. In the intellectual property field, his work examines issues such as settlements in Hatch-Waxman litigation, cybersecurity policy, intellectual property restrictions on essential medicines in developing countries, open source biotechnology, patent damages reform, and the interaction of law and social norms concerning music file sharing.

Professor Opderbeck is also interested in the relationship between law, theology, and science. He recently completed a Ph.D. in Systematic and Philosophical Theology at the University of Nottingham, where his thesis offered a theological appraisal of the emerging discipline of “neurolaw.” Prior to his academic career, he was a Partner in the Intellectual Property / Information Technology practice at McCarter & English, LLP. Currently, he is Counsel in the Cybersecurity Task Force at Gibbons, PC.

Professor Opderbeck received his B.A. from Gordon College, his J.D. from Seton Hall Law School, and his LL.M. from New York University School of Law.

Brad L. Peterson

*Partner
Mayer Brown*

Brad Peterson is a partner in the firm's Chicago office. He leads the Technology Transactions practice.

Lauded by clients as “astonishingly talented” (Chambers USA 2010), Mr. Peterson has focused his practice for twenty years on helping companies work better with their technology and operations suppliers. In outsourcing, he has represented customers in dozens of large managed services agreements with, cumulatively, over $15 billion in contract value. In the past five years, he has represented clients in increasing numbers of contracts with digital services providers, including cloud, data analytics, “as a Service” and automated process scopes, and cyber security and privacy issues related to those scopes. He also has extensive experience representing companies' licensing enterprise systems and contracting for systems integration and systems development for those systems.

Mr. Peterson is a frequent and popular speaker and writer on outsourcing, the Digital Age, and emerging technology topics. He has for several years been a co-chair of the Practising Law Institute's program on Outsourcing. Mr. Peterson majored in Computer Studies as an undergraduate, received an MBA from the University of Chicago, and worked as a software developer and IBM Marketing Representative for years before attending Harvard Law School.

David A. Simon

Partner

Mayer Brown

David Simon is a partner in Mayer Brown's Washington D.C. office and a member of the global Cybersecurity & Data Privacy practice. He is also a member of the firm's National Security and Government Contracts practices.

A former special counsel at the U.S. Department of Defense, Mr. Simon has advised extensively on cutting-edge cybersecurity and national security matters. He focuses his practice on complex and sensitive cybersecurity, defense, intelligence, and national security matters, with deep experience advising victims of state-sponsored cyber activity. He counsels companies as they address cyber vulnerabilities and breaches, as well as associated legal, regulatory, and reputational consequences. He has advised companies on major cybersecurity incidents and incident preparedness across virtually every sector of the economy, including the banking, investment management, tech, automotive, health care, defense and intelligence, and telecom. In addition, he has significant expertise regarding the evolving cybersecurity and privacy legal framework applicable to the Internet of Things (IoT) and product cybersecurity. In addition, he helps companies structure, negotiate and protect their commercial and compliance relationships with key national security government agencies. Mr. Simon also counsels U.S. and foreign clients regarding economic sanctions, asset controls, and transactions reviewed by the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS).

During his time as special counsel in the Pentagon (2011-2015), Mr. Simon advised on the development of a legal and policy framework to address cyber threats, including one of the most destructive cyber attacks on the United States: North Korea's 2014 cyber attack of Sony Pictures Entertainment. In addition, he advised on broader matters involving cybersecurity policy, plans, and operations, as well as autonomous technologies, the use of force, counterterrorism, treaties, sensitive investigations, and regional matters involving China, the Korean Peninsula, Russia, Ukraine, Syria, Iran, and Israel.

Mr. Simon is widely recognized for his experience regarding the legal and policy issues at the intersection of cybersecurity, autonomous technologies, and national security. Recently, he was named a "2017 Cybersecurity & Data Privacy Trailblazer" by the National Law Journal for helping to "make a difference in the fight against criminal cyber activity and towards adding much needed layers of data security in an increasingly digital world of commerce," and a 2018 Rising Star of the Law—40 Under 40—by DCA Live. He is an Adjunct Fellow in Cybersecurity and International Law at the Center for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS), where he served as a member of a Cyber Policy Task Force that developed cybersecurity recommendations for the 45th presidential administration. He is also a Visiting Research Fellow with the College of Information and Cyberspace at the U.S. National Defense University.

Currently, Mr. Simon also serves as an independent expert on cybersecurity and international law to the United Nations (UN) Security Council and is a member of the UN Experts Committee regarding the prevention of terrorist exploitation of the Internet, and related information communications technologies. He also served, at the invitation of the NATO Cooperative Cyber Defense Center of Excellence in Tallinn, Estonia, as a peer reviewer of the second edition of the "Tallinn Manual on the International Law Applicable to Cyber Warfare." He is a term member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

A Rhodes Scholar and Truman Scholar, Mr. Simon graduated from Harvard Law School, where he was an executive editor of the Harvard Civil Rights-Civil Liberties Law Review and a Heyman Fellow. Prior to attending law school, he received an M.Phil. in International Relations from Trinity College, Oxford, where he debated for the Oxford Union and was the managing editor of the Oxford International Review. He graduated summa cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa from the University of Minnesota, where he received a B.A. in Russian Area Studies.

Daniel L. Stein

Partner

Mayer Brown

Dan Stein is a partner at the firm's New York office and a member of the Litigation & Dispute Resolution practice. He leads the firm's global Regulatory & Investigations group and is a co-leader of the White Collar Defense & Compliance group. He focuses his practice on representing and counseling financial services firms. He has extensive experience in regulatory enforcement, government and internal investigations, white collar criminal defense, and complex civil litigation. He counsels corporate and individual clients in a range of complex issues, including U.S. Securities Exchange Commission and Financial Industry Regulatory Authority investigations and enforcement actions. Prior to joining Mayer Brown, Mr. Stein was Chief of the Criminal Division for the United States Attorney's Office for the Southern District of New York (SDNY). He assumed that position in July 2015, after servicing as Chief Counsel to the U.S. Attorney since July 2014.

Mr. Stein's decade-long career with the U.S. Attorney's Office in New York included two terms of duty. He first joined in 2003, where, as an assistant U.S. Attorney, he investigated and prosecuted cases involving a wide range of federal crimes, including those involving companies in the financial services industry. In this role, he represented the United States in several significant criminal public corruption cases. From 2009-2011, he served as chief of the office's Public Corruption Unit, where he was the principal trial counsel in more than a dozen criminal trials and argued numerous appeals in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

In 2014, Mr. Stein rejoined the U.S. Attorney's Office, serving as chief counsel to the U.S. Attorney before stepping into his most recent role, where he oversaw all of the SDNY's criminal prosecutions and investigations, including those involving securities fraud, insider trading, public corruption, foreign corrupt practices, criminal tax offenses, money laundering, economic sanctions, cybercrime, narcotics trafficking, violent crimes, and terrorism.

Between stints in the SDNY, Mr. Stein spent several years in private practice, where he handled criminal and regulatory matters for a number of major financial institutions and other clients. Earlier in his career, he clerked for the Honorable Leonard B. Sand of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York. He earned a J.D. from Yale Law School and graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Columbia University.

David Stubbs

Managing Director, Life Sciences Investment Banking
Raymond James Financial, Inc.

David Stubbs joined Raymond James in 2014, has over sixteen years of investment banking experience, and has been an instrumental part of building the health care practices at several leading banking franchises.

Prior to Raymond James, Mr. Stubbs was a founder of Inverness Advisors, a boutique health care advisory firm. Before founding Inverness, he worked with the health care teams at Thomas Weisel Partners, Deutsche Bank, and Salomon Smith Barney.

Mr. Stubbs received a B.A. from the University of California at Los Angeles, and an MBA from the University of Chicago Graduate School of Business.

Charles Sullivan

*Professor of Law and Senior Associate Dean for Finance & Faculty
Seton Hall University School of Law*

Professor Sullivan received his B.A. from Siena College, his LL.B. from Harvard University, and his LL.M. from New York University. He practiced in New York and previously taught at the University of South Carolina and the University of Arkansas.

Dean Sullivan has published in the areas of employment discrimination, employment law, contracts, and antitrust. He is co-author of Employment Discrimination: Law & Practice, now in its Fourth Edition; Cases and Materials on Employment Discrimination, now in its Ninth Edition; Employment Law: Private Ordering And Its Limitation, now in its Third Edition; and Cases and Materials on Employment Law(1993). He has published in a number of law reviews, including Cornell, Wisconsin, Boston University, Ohio State, Georgetown, Northwestern, and William & Mary.

An elected member of the American Law Institute, he joined the Seton Hall Law faculty in 1978. He was honored with the Catania Chair from 2010 to 2016, named in memory of a deceased colleague, friend, and co-author. He served as Associate Dean at Seton Hall from 1995 until 2001, and directed the Rodino Library from 2008 to 2015. He was named Associate Dean for Finance and Faculty in 2015.

Jeffrey Taft

*Partner
Mayer Brown*

Jeffrey Taft is a partner in Mayer Brown's Financial Services Regulatory & Enforcement group based in the Washington, D.C. office and a member of the firm's Cybersecurity & Data Privacy practice. His practice focuses primarily on banking regulation, payment systems, consumer financial services, privacy, and cybersecurity issues. He has extensive experience counseling banks, insurance companies, broker-dealers, investment advisers, merchants, and other entities on regulatory matters, including compliance with the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLB Act), the Fair Credit Reporting Act, the Electronic Fund Transfer Act, unfair or deceptive practices statutes, state privacy and data breach notification laws, and the Payment Card Industry Data Security Standards (PCI DSS).

Mr. Taft regularly assists banks, broker-dealers, investment advisers, insurance companies, merchants, and other financial services companies with their development, implementation, and review of privacy, incident response, information security, and cybersecurity programs designed to comply with the GLB Act, NYDFS cybersecurity regulation, state data breach notification laws, and industry standards, such as PCI DSS. He also has extensive experience counseling clients on their obligations under federal and state laws, regulations, and agency guidance in the event of unauthorized access to non-public personally identifiable information and other confidential data or a cybersecurity incident.

Luis Vilarin

*Vice President–Global Head, GPS (Manufacturing & Product Development) and EHS (Environmental Law)
Bristol-Myers Squibb*

Luis Vilarin is Global Head of GPS (Manufacturing) and EHS (Environmental) Law. He is responsible for providing legal advice on Regulatory, Quality, Compliance, Transactional, and Commercial issues impacting GPS. He and his team are also responsible for providing EHS legal advice for the entire company.

Mr. Vilarin joined Bristol-Myers Squibb in 2004, as an Associate Counsel in Technical Operations, and has held a number of positions of increasing responsibility within the Law Department, most recently as the Vice President and Assistant General Counsel for the Strategic Corporate Transactions group.

Mr. Vilarin is a co-lead of the Law Department's Legal Innovation Team and is a member of the company's Analytics Exchange. He also serves as the Executive Sponsor of the Law Department's Diversity Committee and a member of the CEO's Diversity and Inclusion Council.

Mr. Vilarin received his undergraduate degree in Economics from Duke University and his law degree from Rutgers Law School-Newark.

Eric Wasserstrum

*Director, Transactions
Roivant Pharma*

Eric Wasserstrum is a Director on the Transactions team at Roivant Pharma, where he structures and negotiates transactions for development-stage pharmaceutical assets with biotechs, pharmaceutical companies, and academic centers.

Before joining Roivant in March 2018, Mr. Wasserstrum was a corporate attorney at Cravath, Swaine & Moore, where he represented companies and financial institutions in a variety of matters, including mergers and acquisitions, securities offerings, and leveraged loan transactions. Prior to that, he was an economic consultant at Analysis Group, where he focused on valuing intellectual property for sale or license and estimation of damages in intellectual property infringement matters.

Mr. Wasserstrum earned a B.A. in Economics from Washington University in St. Louis and a J.D. from Columbia Law School.