AMERICAN CONSTITUTION SOCIETY

The American Constitution Society (ACS) realizes the promises of the U.S. Constitution by building a diverse legal community that dedicates itself to advancing and defending democracy, justice, equality, and liberty; to securing a government that serves the public interest; and to guarding against the abuse of law and the concentration of power. ACS nurtures the next generation of progressive lawyers, judges, policy experts, legislators, and academics by providing opportunities for the free exchange of ideas, networking, mentoring, and organizing around matters of both local and national significance.

CANNABIS AND PSYCHEDELIC LAW SOCIETY

Pending Provisional

Seton Hall's newest student organization is here to start the conversation about the intersection of law, cannabis, and psychedelics. The Cannabis & Psychedelic Law Society is founded on the tenets of education, professionalism, and justice. Our goals are to educate students on the current legal landscape of these substances, forge professional connections with cannabis and psychedelic professionals in the northeast, and work towards justice by giving back to those who have been harmed by the War on Drugs.

The Environmental and Energy Law Society seeks to educate the community about growing issues in the field of environmental and energy law, and the challenges we face moving forward. Such areas include litigation and policymaking surrounding climate change, sustainable development, and conservation efforts both in New Jersey and throughout the United States. We are a resource for anyone who wishes to pursue a career in environmental activism, environmental law, energy law, utility law, and any other legal career related to environmental conservation and sustainability. Through regular meetings, correspondence via GroupMe and Email Newsletters, and events, we hope to provide a hub of communication about the varying legal practices and a forum within which to discuss and debate environmental and energy challenges and ideas facing the legal community.

The Family Law Society consists of a group of students who share an interest in family law or one of its various sub-specialties. As the institution of the family continues to evolve, the Society offers a platform for students to delve into the complexities of family law. The Family Law Society provides students interested in this area of expertise with an avenue to explore the complexities of Family Law and today's hot-button issues, such as Family Mediation and Collaborative Divorce.

The Family Law Society hosts events throughout the year to offer insights into various aspects of family law. These events provide opportunities to hear the perspectives of various practitioners, judges, and academicians. Previous events have included a clothing drive, an adoption day celebration, and a panel discussion consisting of different types of Family Law practitioners, which the Society's Faculty Advisor moderates. Membership is open to all students.

FEDERALIST SOCIETY

1L Point of Contact:

Nadia Ghazal

nadia.ghazal@student.shu.edu

Federalist Society is an organization of 60,000 lawyers, law students, scholars, and other individuals who believe and trust that individual citizens can make the best choices for themselves and society. It was founded in 1982 by a group of law students interested in making sure that the principles of limited government embodied in our Constitution receive a fair hearing. The Society's main purpose is to sponsor fair, serious, and open debate about the need to enhance individual freedom and the role of the courts in saying what the law is rather than what they wish it to be. We believe debate is the best way to ensure that legal principles that have not been the subject of sufficient attention for the past several decades receive a fair hearing. We do not lobby for legislation, take policy positions, or sponsor or endorse nominees and candidates for public service.

@firstgenlaw_shu

First Generation Law Students Association (FGLSA) was founded in 2018. FGLSA aims to create a community that will serve as a network for Seton Hall Law students who are the first in their immediate families to enter the legal field. Many first-generation law students encounter unique obstacles as they begin law school, and most attend law school with minimal guidance. Accordingly, FGLSA seeks to be a community of support and a home for such students along their journey to becoming first generation attorneys. FGLSA implements educational and innovative events which tackle the various challenges faced by first-generation law students. FGLSA provides members with alumni contact lists, networking opportunities, optional study group sessions for core 1L courses, and an optional mentorship program. Membership is open to all students.
