

UNIVERSITY HONORS RECOMMENDATION

Through the awarding of University honors, Seton Hall seeks to recognize individuals who have made a noteworthy contribution to the good of our world. All candidates for University honors must respect the ideals, goals, and Catholic identity of Seton Hall, as expressed in our Mission Statement and elsewhere. Moreover, in the case of the especially high distinction of an honorary degree, the candidate should demonstrate one or more of the following:

- exemplary service, either personal or professional, to the local, national, or international community, in a manner consistent with the values and mission of the University and with the tradition and teachings of the Catholic Church;
- outstanding contributions to the life and mission of the Church or to ecumenism and/or interfaith dialogue;
- commitment to peace and social justice, with respect for equality and diversity; and
- important contributions to the search for truth—to the intellectual life, to the world of culture, or to academic disciplines in which Seton Hall is active—pursued with a fundamental appreciation of the dignity of the human person
