

Introduction to Contracts and Torts

The readings for this course are available in a custom-made textbook published by Academic Pub. You should purchase the B&W softcover version of the book; there is no reason to purchase the more expensive color version, as there are no color illustrations. As soon as you place your order, you will receive an e-version of the book, so you can start your reading right away. The hard copy will arrive in about a week. If you have not previously registered with Academic Pub, you will need to create a username and password by clicking on the green “Free Registration” button on the bottom right of the page (under the words “Not Registered? It’s Free!”)

AcademicPub Customer Service Contact Information

AcademicPub is open from Monday through Friday from 8 am until 7 pm Eastern Time.

You can contact AcademicPub via live chat. You will get priority customer service by prefacing your first name with “SHU.” This will indicate to Academic Pub’s representatives that you are a Seton Hall student.

You can reach AcademicPub by phone toll free at 866-297-9095. If there are no representatives available, please leave a message and they will return your call as soon as possible.

You can email AcademicPub at: support@sharedbook.com. Or, you can visit Academic Pub’s online Student Knowledgebase.

If none of these options get the desired results, you can call Jim Agostine, Director of Customer Service directly at 646-442-8860.