EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

On the night of June 9, 2006, three detainees died in a maximum security section of the Guantánamo Bay Detention facility. The military’s initial press releases reported not only that the detainees were found hanging in their cells but also that their actions were a conspiracy as part of “asymmetrical warfare” against the United States. At the same time, the military ordered all media off the island and prevented all lawyers from visiting their clients.

Questions immediately arose about how three detainees, under constant supervision, were able to conspire effectively to commit coordinated suicides. The military soon announced that it was conducting an investigation, but the results were not published until more than two years later. In August 2008 a heavily redacted report of the investigation concluded that the detainees had hanged themselves in their cells and that one detainee, while walking the corridors that night, had announced, “tonight’s the night.”

The investigation, however, leaves many unanswered questions. Three years later it is still unclear how such coordinated conduct could have occurred, much less how heavily supervised detainees could have been dead for more than two hours before they were discovered. Both the time and exact manner of the deaths remain uncertain, and the presence of rags stuffed in the detainees’ throats is unexplained. Negligence of the guards seems to have been ruled out by the absence of any disciplinary action by any military personnel. Although some of the guards were formally warned that their original statements were suspected to be false or that they were suspected of failing to follow direct orders, no guard was ultimately charged with either making a false statement or being derelict in his duty.

The following report examines the investigation, not to determine what happened that night, but rather to assess why an investigation into three deaths could have failed to address significant issues. Further, the report raises serious questions that must be addressed to dispose of rumors that have circulated—rumors that the cause of the deaths was more sinister than “asymmetrical warfare.”

This report reveals the following facts:

- The original military press releases did not report that the detainees had been dead for more than two hours when they were discovered, nor that rigor mortis had set in by the time of discovery.

- There is no explanation of how three bodies could have hung in cells for at least two hours while the cells were under constant supervision, both by video camera and by guards continually walking the corridors guarding only 28 detainees.

- There is no explanation of how each of the detainees, much less all three, could have done the following: braided a noose by tearing up his sheets and/or clothing, made a mannequin of himself so it would appear to the guards he was asleep in his cell, hung sheets to block vision into the cell—a violation of Standard Operating Procedures, tied his feet together, tied his hands together, hung the noose from the metal mesh of the cell wall and/or ceiling, climbed up on to the sink, put the noose around his neck and released his weight to result in death by strangulation, hanged until dead and hung for at least two hours completely unnoticed by guards.

- There is no indication that the medics observed anything unusual on the cell block at the time that the detainees were hanging dead in their cells.

- The initial military press releases did not report that, when the detainees’ bodies arrived at the clinic, it was determined that each had a rag obstructing his throat.

- There is no explanation of how the supposed acts of “asymmetrical warfare” could have been coordinated by the three detainees, who had been on the same cell block fewer than 72 hours with occupied and unoccupied cells between them and under constant supervision.

- There is no explanation of why the Alpha Block guards were advised that they were suspected of making false statements or failing to obey direct orders.

- There is no explanation of why the guards were ordered not to provide sworn statements about what happened that night.

- There is no explanation of why the government seemed to be unable to determine which guards were on duty that night in Alpha Block.

- There is no explanation of why the guards who brought the bodies to the medics did not tell the medics what had happened to cause the deaths and why the medics never asked how the deaths had occurred.

- There is no explanation of why no one was disciplined for acts or failures to act that night.

- There is no explanation of why the guards on duty in the cell block were not systematically interviewed about the events of the night; why the medics who visited the cell block before the hangings were not interviewed; or why the tower guards, who had the responsibility and ability to observe all activity in the camp, were not interviewed.

As these many unanswered questions suggest, the investigations were themselves contrary, not only to best practices for investigations of serious matters, but also failed to conform to minimum standards in several ways. These include:

- Failure to review relevant information, most of which was easily available including audio and video recordings which are systematically maintained; “Pass-On” books prepared by each shift to describe occurrences on the block for the next shift; the Detainee Information Management System, which contains records of all activity for that night as the events occur; and Serious Incident Reports, which are the reports used when there are suicide attempts.

- Failure to investigate an alleged conspiracy among detainees to commit suicide, despite the Naval Criminal Investigative Service’s statement that on the night in question another detainee—who did not later commit suicide—walked through the cell block telling people, “tonight’s the night.” There is no indication of how this could have happened given camp security rules or, if it had taken place, why security was not tighter than usual as a result.

- Failure to investigate all available material witnesses who would have had an opportunity to observe what happened that night.

CONCLUSION ............................................................................................................................... 54
1. Introduction and Summary of Events and Military Investigations

On June 9, 2006, three detainees died while in custody at Camp 1 of the Guantánamo Bay detention facility. Yassar Talal Al Zahrani, Mani Shaman Turki Al Habardi Al Tabi, and Ali Abdullah Ahmed were each reported to have been found hanging in his cell at approximately 00:20 on June 10. The military conducted several investigations in the aftermath of the incident, producing thousands of pages of material and finally releasing approximately 1,700 pages to the public in August 2008 and April 2009. Despite months of investigation and multiple interviews with guards, medical personnel, and commanding officers, the government does not answer the question of how the detainees could have committed suicide in such a closely guarded, high-security facility.

The military and government reacted swiftly to the deaths. Shortly after Joint Task Force Guantánamo (“JTF-GTMO”) announced the deaths, the Commander of the Guantánamo Naval Forces, Rear Admiral Harry Harris stated, “I believe this was not an act of desperation, but rather an act of asymmetrical warfare waged against us.” Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Colleen Graffy described the deaths as a “good PR move to draw attention” and nothing more than “a tactic to further the jihadi cause.” Both Harris and Graffy made these statements prior to the completion of any investigation.

Before the last detainee was declared dead, investigators from the Naval Criminal Investigation Service (“NCIS”) began interviewing military personnel who “had any dealings with the response and treatment of the three [dead] detainees.” Investigative action continued for several months, but it took more than two years for NCIS to release its findings concluding that the detainees killed themselves by hanging in their cells.

Six weeks after the June 9 deaths, Admiral Harris initiated an investigation into the possible failure of Naval personnel to follow the Standard Operating Procedures (“SOPs”) and how such failures may have related to the detainees’ deaths. Admiral Harris’ report, released publicly in April 2009, found that SOPs were violated and recommended that no disciplinary action be taken. How Admiral Harris reached such conclusions is confusing as the autopsy reports indicate that the detainees were hanging in their cells for at least two hours before guards noticed them that night.

A. Summary of Events as Described by the Investigative File

On the night of the deaths, Alpha Block was monitored by guards and videos cameras. Guards observed the detainees at least every 10 minutes while walking the tier. Cells on Alpha Block have one solid wall and three metal mesh sides so that guards on the block, and tower guards outside, are able to see into the cells. The five Alpha Block guards monitored 28 detainees. The three detainees in question were in cells located on the same side of Alpha Block. At least three of the cells in between them were empty.

Accepting the military investigation findings as true and complete, in order to commit suicide by hanging, the detainees must have:

- Braided a noose by tearing up their sheets and/or clothing
- Made mannequins of themselves so it would appear to the guards that they were asleep in their cells
- Hung sheets to block the view into the cells, a violation of SOPs
- Tied their feet together
- Tied their hands together
- Shoved rags in their mouths and down their throats
- Hung the noose from the metal mesh of the cell wall and/or ceiling
- Climbed up on to the sink, put the noose around their necks and released their weight, resulting in death by strangulation
- Hung dead for at least two hours completely unnoticed by guards

SOPs required guards to note movement or to see the detainee’s skin while walking the block. This raises many questions as to how three detainees on the same cell block, on the same side of the block, were able to complete the aforementioned acts without any Alpha guards noticing.

Al Zahrani was reportedly discovered hanging in his cell after midnight on June 10. Upon discovery, the Alpha guards did not call the medics to assist, nor did they advise the medical clinic or call for escort guards or any kind of assistance, as required by SOPs. Instead, all five Alpha guards transported Al Zahrani to the medical clinic approximately 100 yards away. According to the autopsy reports, it took about 28 minutes to do so, leaving the cell block completely unguarded while two other detainees hung in their cells. The Alpha guards did not notice two other detainees hanging dead in their cells.

The Alpha guards who brought Al Zahrani to the clinic reported that the doors of the clinic were closed, and they had to knock repeatedly until they were finally admitted. No doctor was on duty that evening, so clinic personnel had to call a doctor to properly attend to the detainee. When they were unable to locate the doctor’s telephone number, clinic personnel had to call 911 for medical assistance. During this time the Alpha guards did not explain to the clinic personnel what had happened to the detainee or how he was found, nor did the clinic personnel ask the guards what had happened. Other guards from around the camp who happened to be on or around Alpha block discovered the second hanging detainee. Al Tabi was found in his cell and brought to the clinic about 10 minutes after Al Zahrani. Minutes later, other guards discovered Ahmed hanging in his cell and brought him to the clinic.

The medics began resuscitation attempts on each detainee after his arrival. According to descriptions from the guards, medics, and autopsy reports, all three detainees were cold to the touch, bluish in color, and in a state of rigor mortis, indicating that each had been dead for more than two hours at the time of discovery. Their eyes were rolled back in their sockets and they had no pulse. Rigor mortis locked their jaws and impeded resuscitation attempts. In the case of one detainee, his jaw had to be pried open with a metal instrument that broke his teeth. At that time, medical personnel discovered that he had a cloth deep in his mouth and down his throat. The same condition was discovered in the other two bodies. The investigations did not explain why the detainees had rags in their throats.

Al Zahrani was subsequently transported to the hospital where he was declared dead at 01:50. Al Tabi and Ahmed were declared dead at the clinic at 01:15 and 01:16, respectively. Immediately after the detainees were declared dead, Admiral Harris arrived at the clinic and praised the medical staff and the guards for the manner in which they had performed, stating that they could not have done anything more to save the detainees.

B. Initial Inquiries by Colonel Bumgarner

On June 10, 2006, Colonel Michael Bumgarner (“Commander”), the commanding officer responsible for the guards at Camp Delta initiated the first investigation into the night’s events. The Commander initially ordered the guards to write sworn statements of what had occurred that night. After they started to do so, however, he countermanded his own order and no statements were ever produced.

All of the witnesses were brought into the conference room to await individual interviews by the commanding officer. The Commander told them to sign their names and to indicate with an asterisk next to their signatures if they had been assigned to Alpha Block. During these interviews, all other witnesses were told to remain in the conference room without talking. The Commander interviewed some of the Alpha guards to discover what happened. He did not take notes or record any names, and subsequently did not remember with whom he had met.

Those interviewed privately by the Commander joined the other witnesses in the conference room to await interviews with NCIS and the Criminal Investigation Task Force (CITF), which began about two hours later. The investigative file contains only brief summaries of these interviews, which were conducted by local NCIS and CITF and appear to be the only interviews conducted before the NCIS investigative team arrived from Miami at about 15:30 that afternoon.

C. The Investigations

From the afternoon of June 10 to the morning of June 14, there is no evidence of any NCIS or CITF interviews. When the investigations resumed, investigators notified each of the Alpha Block guards that he was suspected of having made false statements or failing to obey direct orders. The NCIS and CITF investigative documents do not indicate what allegedly false statements were, when they were made, or what direct order was disobeyed. The only record of any previous statements made by the Alpha guards was the unrecorded statement taken by the commanding officer in his office early on the morning of June 10 before the NCIS investigation began.

The NCIS and CITF investigators interviewed guards, medics, detainees, and the commanding officer between June 14 and June 20, 2006. The next reported interview was not until 21 days later on July 11, 2006. It is possible that additional information and interviews are contained in the more than 600 missing and completely redacted pages in the combined investigative file. Nevertheless, there is no record of any investigatory body reviewing direct evidence from Camp Delta or Alpha Block from June 9-10, 2006.

The investigations apparently did not review videotapes of the cell block, “pass-on” books, the duty roster for Alpha Block that night, audio recordings, records of detainee transfers from Alpha Block, or medical records from the detainee clinic that night. Furthermore, the investigation did not review records from the tower guards—who would have had a clear view of cell block, records of the camp communication center, or Block Documentation Detainee Information Management Systems (“DIMS”) records of all computer communications between all cell blocks and the Command Center.\(^4\)

The investigative reports did not determine which Alpha guards were assigned to the block, what the Alpha guard shift schedule was for that night, and which Alpha guard was responsible for carrying out specific SOPs that night, including cell checks and headcounts. The investigations also failed to determine what the guards who were in a position to observe and/or prevent the deaths saw or did not see. Various guards and a platoon leader were documented as walking the block from 21:30 to 23:47, but according to the investigation there were no determinations made about what they saw. Finally, no investigation recognized or addressed the fact that the detainees had been dead for hours before they were discovered or the presence of cloth lodged in the mouths and deep down the throats of all three detainees.

D. The Staff Judge Advocate (SJA) Report ordered by Admiral Harris

The NCIS investigation was not tasked with recommending disciplinary proceedings for violations of the SOPs that might have contributed to the deaths. Instead, Admiral Harris appointed an Investigating Officer at least one month after the detainee’s deaths to determine whether there had been any SOPs violations on June 9-10, and if so, whether those violations contributed to the ability of the detainees to commit suicide.

Admiral Harris concluded no disciplinary action was necessary. He stated that even if all SOPs had been followed, it was possible that the detainees still could have committed suicide. Additionally, there was confusion among the guards regarding the SOPs.

\(^4\) NCIS did attempt to retrieve the 911 logs from June 9-10, 2006; however, the system had a power failure and was not properly reactivated. The system was not in operation from May 3, 2006 until June 10, 2006. NCIS at 926.
E. The Issue

Three men died, and there is little to no explanation of how this could have occurred in a maximum security facility. The investigations do not clarify what occurred that night, nor do they answer basic questions: who, what, where, when, why, and how Al Zahrani, Al Tabi, and Ahmed died.

After NCIS released its initial summary, news media, academics, and other critics questioned the events of that night. Based on the facts presented in the released documents, a number of questions remain about the events of June 9 and 10.

There is no indication in any of the interviews or statements of any suspicious activity on Alpha Block before the discovery of the bodies. As the Commander himself noted, in past suicide attempts other detainees made it “urgently and loudly known that a detainee was carrying out some type of self-harm.” No cries were heard from the detainees, and aside from chanting earlier in the day, no other unusual activity was noted that might indicate a suicide attempt. None of the guards or medics on the floor that night noticed any of the detainees hanging dead, although the detainees were hanging for more than two hours before discovery.

The report that follows maps the events of that night as described in statements made in the investigative files and explains the relevant SOP regulations governing the personnel on duty. In doing so, the report documents that the guards who were on duty, other military personnel, and various detainees all made statements that create inconsistencies and questions. This report makes no conclusions regarding what actually transpired on June 9 and 10, 2006.

2. Methodology

The Center for Policy and Research began investigating the government response to the June 10 deaths days after the incident in 2006. On August 21, 2006, the Center published, “June 10th Suicides at Guantánamo: Government Words and Deeds Compared.” This report profiled the three detainees who committed suicide—Ahmed, Al Zahrani, and Al Tabi—and found that critical information was withheld from the detainees at the time of their deaths.

Approximately two and a half years after the incident on August 22, 2008, the Department of Defense (“DOD”) released its official findings statement. Admiral Harris’s report was released the next April. In all, the investigative documents contain more than 1,700 pages.

This report relies primarily upon those documents prepared and released by the United States Government after the June 10, 2006, incident, but also includes public statements of certain high-ranking individuals and official press releases. Some of the documents were released to the public through the Freedom of Information Act (“FOIA”); others the Department of Justice (“DOJ”) and the DOD released voluntarily. Some were leaked. It was not until all of these independent sources were painstakingly compiled that the picture began to take form.

In developing and writing this report, the research fellows at Seton Hall University School of Law’s Center for Policy and Research reviewed and analyzed the investigative files of the June 10, 2006, deaths released by the DOD. These files include reports from the Naval Criminal Investigation Service (“NCIS”), the Criminal Investigation Task Force (“CITF”), US Southern Command (“SOUTHCOM”), the Staff Judge Advocate’s Report (“SJA Report”), and the Armed Forces Medical Examiner’s autopsies of the three men. This report accepts as true all of the information released by the government to the extent that the information is not internally inconsistent.

Since all documents are heavily redacted—names, dates, and other facts are on most pages completely obscured—the Center Research Fellows worked more than six months to deconstruct the investigation, synthesize the information, and construct the events of June 9 and 10. In developing this report, the Center examined the government’s investigative findings by combining separate investigative files using the handwritten page numbers. Then, each interview summary or statement was identified. The names of the interviewees are redacted from the documents, so each interview was labeled and categorized by the date, type of personnel, and contents therein.\(^9\)

This report provides an in-depth look at the SOPs of Camp Delta in the Guantánamo Bay Detention Facility.\(^10\) It then scrutinizes the deaths of the detainees and the subsequent autopsies. Next, the report analyzes the findings of the investigations. Finally, it points out the defects in the investigation.

3. Government Investigation

The investigations of the June 10, 2006, deaths at Camp Delta came to similar conclusions concerning the detainees’ deaths. Each investigation conducted its own interviews but relied on findings from the other investigative files in making its own conclusions.\(^11\) The investigative documents are organized with handwritten page numbers; where page numbers are missing from one investigative document, they are found in another investigative document or \(^10\) The SOPs used in the report are the 2004 Standard Operating Procedures, the latest publicly available edition. The 2005 SOPs were adopted in March of that year and were in place at the time of the suicides.

are redacted entirely. While each investigation began in 2006, the first findings were not released until August 2008, more than two years after the incident. The investigations concluded that the detainees committed suicide in a coordinated act of asymmetrical warfare against the guards in the facility.

A. NCIS Investigation

NCIS is the “primary law enforcement and counterintelligence arm of the United States Department of the Navy.” NCIS has three main strategic objectives: to prevent terrorism, protect secrets, and reduce crime. In its efforts to prevent terrorism, NCIS is responsible for conducting "suspicious incident investigations and operations aimed at detecting, deterring and disrupting terrorist activities against the Department of the Navy personnel and assets worldwide." In an attempt to reduce crime, NCIS provides criminal investigations of all major criminal offenses punishable under the Uniform Code of Military Justice that occur within the Department of the Navy.

“This is a reactive investigation initiated to determine cause and manner of death...”

- NCIS Investigative File

On June 10, 2006, NCIS initiated an investigation into the deaths of detainees Al Zahrani (ISN 093), Al Tabi (ISN 588), and Ahmed (ISN 693). After all three bodies were removed and the death scenes secured, NCIS arrived at Camp 1 to begin its investigation. NCIS conducted interviews with specific personnel involved in the response and treatment of the three detainees. Those interviewed include the Alpha guards, the officers on duty, escort control, guards from other cell blocks, and medical personnel at the Detention (“DET”) Clinic. NCIS officials interviewed 16 detainees assigned to Alpha Block; however, it reported that the detainees did not provide any substantive information. The NCIS investigative file included information from the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, the institution that performed autopsies on the three detainees. NCIS accepted the conclusion from the autopsies that the cause of death for all three victims was hanging, but NCIS fails to address the findings of the autopsies that the bodies had been dead for more than two hours. In addition, the U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Laboratory ("USACIL") revealed that Ahmed’s and Al Zahrani’s fingerprints were on apparent suicide notes discovered on the bodies.\(^\text{23}\)

During the on-site investigations, all paper documents were removed from all detainee cells in the camp. NCIS subsequently established a Filter Litigation Team ("FLT") to review the seized documents, both to determine whether they were relevant to the investigation and to identify attorney-client privileged information.\(^\text{24}\) The FLT determined that twelve of the seized documents were relevant to the investigation, none of which were cited in the conclusions of any of the investigations.\(^\text{25}\)

On May 12, 2008, the investigation was closed.\(^\text{26}\) NCIS issued a press release on August 22, 2008. Its preliminary findings concluded that the three detainees committed suicide by hanging from “braided rope made from bed sheets and tee shirts.”\(^\text{27}\) They were found inside their cells on Alpha Block of Camp Delta around 00:30 on June 10, 2006, and taken to the DET Clinic.\(^\text{28}\) The detainees were last seen alive at 22:00 that night.\(^\text{29}\) Afterwards, Al Zahrani was transported by ambulance to the Naval Hospital.\(^\text{30}\) He was pronounced dead at the Naval Hospital, while Al Tabi and Ahmed were both pronounced dead at the DET Clinic.\(^\text{31}\) The only evidence of a conspiracy is the statement that “representatives of other law enforcement agencies” reported that on the night of the hangings a detainee had “walked through the cell block telling people ‘tonight’s the night.’”\(^\text{32}\) On each body, medical personnel found a short written statement indicating the detainees coordinated the effort to rebel against their detainment as martyrs.\(^\text{33}\) Lengthier statements were also found in each of their cells.\(^\text{34}\)

B. CITF Report

CITF was established in 2002 by the Department of Defense to conduct investigations of detainees captured in the war on terrorism.\(^\text{35}\) The organization investigates and builds criminal cases against accused terrorists.\(^\text{36}\) CITF is comprised of a Joint Task Force made up of members from the Army Criminal Investigation Division ("CID"), NCIS, and the Air Force Office of Special Investigations (“OSI”). The headquarters for CITF is located in Virginia, but “forward-deployed detachments [are located] in Guantánamo Bay, Cuba; Iraq; and Afghanistan.”

The CITF documents are comprised of various interviews with Alpha Block guards, three guards from other blocks who responded to the scene, various medical staff, and six detainees. In addition, the report includes earlier interviews with Ahmed before his death. For example, one document shows an interview dated September 18, 2003, where Ahmed claimed to be innocent and in detention at Guantánamo by mistake. Furthermore, roughly half of the CITF pages are redacted completely, and a review of the documents therein reveals neither a final conclusion nor a set of findings. CITF made no official conclusions regarding its investigation.

C. SOUTHCOM

Located in Miami, Florida, SOUTHCOM is one of the Combatant Commands in the Department of Defense that provides “contingency planning, operations, and security cooperation” for Cuba. As the umbrella unit for JTF-GTMO, SOUTHCOM was involved in investigation of the three June 10, 2006 deaths.

The SOUTHCOM investigative file contains a series of documents that supplement the NCIS and CITF investigative files. Specifically, the SOUTHCOM file includes information regarding the documents confiscated from detainees’ cells and copies of the suicide notes and uncertified translations. The file contains no conclusions regarding the information collected and examined during its involvement with the investigation.

D. The SJA Report

The SJA Report is the result of an “informal investigation” conducted by Admiral Harris, Commander of the Guantánamo Naval Forces. On July 20, 2006, Admiral Harris appointed an Investigating Officer to look into the June 10, 2006, deaths of the three detainees. The investigation focused on whether there were any specific SOP violations on June 9-10, 2006, and if so, whether the violations contributed to the ability of the detainee’s to commit suicide.

Specifically, he ordered the inquiry into two questions that NCIS was not investigating: (1) whether the Camp Delta SOPs were followed by relevant Joint Detention Group (“JDG”) personnel during the overnight hours of June 9-10, 2006; and (2) if the SOPs were not followed, whether that failure contributed to the ability of any of the three detainees to commit suicide on that night. The investigation was completed, and the report was sent to the DOD on September 6, 2006.

In his final endorsement of the investigation, Admiral Harris accepted three of the Investigating Officer’s conclusions and rejected two of the Investigating Officer’s conclusions. The findings of the Harris report revealed that there were six SOP violations; the exact SOPs that were violated are redacted from the file. The Admiral concluded that the SOP violations were “not insignificant” and the proper JDG procedures should be followed to ensure accountability in the future. The Admiral accepted that the SOP violations regarding guard coverage may have contributed to the detainees’ “preparation of their suicides.” The Admiral did not rule out that the SOP violation regarding head counts contributed to the “ability of the detainees to commit suicide.” Admiral Harris further accepted that other SOP violations “potentially contributed to the ability of the detainees to commit suicide; however…it is possible…the detainees could have successfully committed suicide regardless.”

Despite the SOP violations, Admiral Harris concluded that disciplinary action was not warranted. Specifically, he determined that the “permissive environment that persisted within the JDG prior to the suicides” as well as the JDG leadership’s “apparent failure” to address guards’ concerns, created circumstances that did not make disciplinary action necessary.

4. Operation of Camp Delta

The Guantánamo Bay Detention Facility is located on the southern coast of Cuba, inside the Guantánamo Bay Naval Base. Sitting on the shore of the eastern tip of Guantánamo Bay approximately four miles to the east of the naval airfield is Camp Delta, one of three known camps that make up the detention facility.

To ensure total supervision and control of the detainees, Guantánamo Camp Delta is governed by SOPs that are established by the Department of Defense. These guidelines provide “policy, procedures, and responsibilities for the security, administration, and treatment of detainees in custody at Camp Delta.”

In addition to physical security measures at the camp, the SOPs create an extremely secure environment where detainees are extensively monitored from the moment they arrive at the Camp. Camp guards are instructed to maintain “continuous presence on the blocks” by frequently conducting headcounts, cell searches and various other security measures.\textsuperscript{52} Below is a more detailed description of Camp Delta’s layout and the specific SOPs governing the guards’ conduct.

A. Detained in Maximum Security Facility

Camp Delta contains four smaller camps, numbered 1 through 4, and the DET Clinic.\textsuperscript{53} Camp 1 sits between Camp 2 to the west and Camp 4 to the east.\textsuperscript{54} Camp 1 is connected to the detainee hospital to the east by a small service road that enters through the main gates of Camp 1.\textsuperscript{55} Camp 1 faces outward toward the Caribbean Sea and, at its closest point, is less than 400 feet from the water.\textsuperscript{56} Each Camp is separately enclosed and surrounded by barbed wire fence.\textsuperscript{57} A sally port is located at the entrance of each Camp, where armed guards maintain access into and out of the camp according to specific procedures.\textsuperscript{58} Sally Ports 4 and 6 control entrance to Camp 1.\textsuperscript{59}

Camp 1 consists of ten cell blocks labeled A through J.\textsuperscript{60} Each block contains 48 cells which are lined up into two rows that face each other along a corridor known as the tier.\textsuperscript{61} The cells are entirely visible from the tier and are enclosed with mesh metal.\textsuperscript{62}

Within Camp 1, Alpha Block is a maximum security facility that houses detainees who have been placed in segregation for either behavioral reasons or for intelligence purposes.\textsuperscript{63} Alpha Block is situated between Juliet Block and Bravo Block and is adjacent to Foxtrot Block.\textsuperscript{64} Sally Port 4 has unobstructed views of the entire Alpha Block.\textsuperscript{65}

Alpha Block contains individual cells for each detainee.\textsuperscript{66} Each cell is approximately six feet, eight inches by eight feet and consists of a sink, toilet, and cot for sleeping.\textsuperscript{67} On the door of each cell is a “bean hole,” which is a small window-like opening where the block guards deliver meals to the detainees and perform shackling and medical checks. In the rear of each cell is a small window allowing for some natural light.

Camp 1 in Guantánamo is a secure facility under constant surveillance. In addition to the guards who patrol the cell blocks, there are several other security measures in place designed to ensure that the camp is watched at all times. Camp 1 has six guard towers posted around its perimeter. The guard towers look directly onto the cells of each of the blocks and monitor any and all movement throughout the camps. The Sally Ports regulate access to all persons entering or exiting the camp and are each staffed by one guard.

Entrance to Camp Delta is made through the Detention Operations Center (“DOC”), the headquarters of the camp. The DOC oversees all detention and security operations. “It is from here that all detainee movements are directed, controlled, and accounted for; that all keys are controlled and accounted for; where entry and exit of all detainees are accounted for and where emergency equipment is stored.” The DOC regulates visitation and limits access to the facility to persons with a valid reason. Every aspect of Camp Delta is under the complete control of the DOC and guard personnel.

B. Standard Operating Procedures

The SOPs are the guidelines for all camp personnel in carrying out daily activities. Camp personnel are not only required to follow these procedures but also to “sign a statement of understanding/acknowledgement that they have read and will adhere to all SOP provisions for Camp Delta.”

1. Chain of Command

The SOPs delineate the chain of command for the camp, headed by the Commander of the Joint Detention Operations Group (“CJDOG”) who has overall responsibility for the Camp. The on-duty Commanding Officer (“CO”) is in charge of Camp Delta and reports to the CJDOG. The CO is responsible for the day-to-day care, custody, control, discipline, safety, and welfare of all detainees. In addition, the CO is responsible for the conduct and discipline of the guard force personnel.

There are two Platoon Leaders (“PLs”) on duty for each shift, who report to the CO and assist in the day-to-day operation of the camp.78 Below the PLs are the Sergeants of the Guard (“SOGs”).79

The SOGs are responsible for the care, conduct, and safety of the guard force. They enforce accountability, control, safety, care, and humane treatment of detainees; ensure that all personnel perform their assigned duties and tasks to standard and adhere to the Camp Delta SOP[s].80

During each shift, a Block Non-Commissioned Officer (“NCO”) is assigned to each block and reports to the SOG for his or her respective camp. The Block NCO “supervises all guards assigned to the block and is responsible for all aspects of custody and control, care, shelter, feeding, and treatment of all detainees housed in the cell block.”81

In addition to the line of command dealing with actual detention, the Escort Control personnel are responsible for the movement of detainees and personnel throughout the camp.82 The Escort Control NCO reports directly to the DOC.83

2. Constant Supervision

All detainee movement is highly secure. Whenever a detainee is removed from his cell, the SOPs require that he wear three-piece restraints to prevent escape as well as self-injury.84 In addition to the restraints, the detainee is accompanied by a team of escorts whenever he is moved outside the cell.85 Each time a detainee is moved, the Escort Guards must go through an extensive checklist.86 This checklist includes notifying all relevant officers and personnel involved, logging the start and stop times of detainee movement, and securing the detainee once he has been escorted to his destination.87 Furthermore, there are differing sets of procedures depending on whether the detainee is being moved for intelligence reasons or medical reasons.88 The purpose of this is to ensure that any and all detainee activity is kept under constant surveillance and security.

“There must be a continuous presence on the blocks by the guards. At no time should the block not have a guard walking up and down the block.”

- SOP 6-1(d) (2004)

In addition to constantly walking the block, the SOPs also mandate headcounts to be conducted at least every three hours to account for every detainee on the cell block. The guard conducting the headcount must compare the Internment Serial Number (“ISN”) number on the ID bracelet with the ISN number on the Alpha roster, as well as the picture on the ID bracelet to the detainee himself. Headcounts are to be done at the start of every shift, and the DOC calls for an additional three randomly-timed headcounts throughout the remainder of the shift. The most time between headcounts is three hours.“ The guard conducting the headcount must compare the Internment Serial Number (“ISN”) number on the ID bracelet with the ISN number on the Alpha roster, as well as the picture on the ID bracelet to the detainee himself. The headcounts are entered into the DIMS, noting which guard conducted the headcount and the results. “Midnight shift will conduct [a] visual search of the cells and [the] detainees every ten minutes by walking through the block.” The midnight searches must also be noted in the pass-on book and all unusual activity must be documented.

Detainees are subject to intense intelligence-gathering operations. Not only are the detainees routinely interrogated by Counterintelligence Agents but they are also constantly watched by the guards themselves, who are then required to fill out various forms documenting any suspicious activity or disturbances.

The Immediate Response Force (“IRF”) is a five member team “intended to be used primarily as a forced cell extraction team, specializing in the extraction of a detainee who is combative, resistive, or if the possibility of a weapon is in the cell at the time of the extraction.” The IRF team may also be called in during a self-harm incident. When the IRF team is used, the SOPs require the SOG or PL to ensure that a video camera operator documents

4. SOP Compliance Mandatory at All Times

The guards’ knowledge and execution of the SOPs is central to the camp’s security mission.

Security is a series of checks and balances performed at various levels both internal and external to the facility. It requires all personnel to continually maintain an effective working knowledge of rules, regulations, and special orders; maintain constant vigilance throughout their daily duties; review/evaluate procedures and initiate recommendations to proper authority for improvements.

The guards are required to maintain a “fair, firm, and impartial enforcement of rules and regulations” in order to facilitate control of the detainees. The guards are required to sign a document stating that they are familiar with all the provisions of the SOPs.

The SOPs also state that “[t]his policy is punitive in that a violation of any provision of this policy may provide a basis for appropriate administrative or judicial/disciplinary action under the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ), or appropriate military/civilian personnel regulations, ejection from Camp Delta, and/or denial of entry.” Therefore, should any portion of the SOPs be violated, the perpetrator is subject to disciplinary action.

5. The Deaths

The three deaths are alleged to be coordinated suicides despite the intensive security and protective measures of the Camp. The detainees were dead for “at least” two hours before discovery according to the government medical examiner. All detainees were reportedly alive or accounted for at 22:00 on June 9, 2006, according to the NCIS Statement of Findings, and found dead between 00:20 and 00:45. Assuming the victims were deceased for the minimum amount of time possible according to the medical examiner, the detainees had 20 to 36 minutes to simultaneously complete their suicides. None of the three detainees’ cells was adjacent to any other.

A. What the Detainees had to do to Commit Suicide by Hanging

According to government investigations, the detainees had “apparently taken their own lives by hanging themselves with braided rope made from bed sheets and tee shirts.” Each detainee reportedly had a cloth mask around his face and cloth stuffed in his mouth and down his throat, with his hands and feet bound together.

Despite strict SOPs stating that detainees may only hang items to dry no higher than half way up the cell walls, the guard statements allege that they were unable to see the detainees hanging as sheets and blankets were arranged to obstruct their view. According to SOPs, “detainees may only hang wet clothing and linen items in cell windows so that they may dry. Once dry, they must be removed.”

“Blankets or sheets may be temporarily hung up, no higher than half way up the cell walls, to provide privacy while using the toilet. Once the detainee has completed using the toilet, the blankets and sheets must be taken down.”

Based on the government reports, each detainee individually must have performed a series of ten tasks to create the opportunity to hang himself. Then, each detainee had to hang in his cell long enough to die—all without a single guard noticing.

To successfully hang himself, each detainee had to (in no certain order):

1. Tear, braid, and twist cloth into nooses
2. Push his mattress up against the cell wall facing the tier
3. Hang up sheets blocking the guards’ view into his cells
4. Create a mannequin of his body under sheets and/or blankets on his bunks
5. Tie his feet together
6. Tie his hands together
7. Stuff cloth in his mouth and down his throat

The government describes this as the manner in which the detainees disguised their cells and successfully hanged themselves without guards detecting an incident of self-harm.

B. Description of the Corpses

The guards who reported discovering the detainees’ bodies after midnight reported that they were found hanging in their cells with their feet dangling just off the ground. The hands and feet of each detainee was bound, a mask covered each detainee’s face, and rags were lodged in each of their mouths and down their throats. Guards and medical personnel similarly described each of the bodies as having the following conditions:

- Rigor mortis
- Cool or cold to the touch
- Blue feet and extremities
- Stiff
- Jaw clenched
- Not breathing
- Abrasion around the neck
- Fixed or dilated pupils

Upon arrival at the clinic, the automated external defibrillator (AED) did not detect a shockable rhythm. The medical personnel tried to pry the detainees’ jaws open to remove the cloth. In one instance, the medics broke at least one of the detainee’s teeth during the attempt. The medical personnel performed CPR on each of the three detainees for as long as 30 minutes. Both Al Tabi and Ahmed were declared dead at 01:15 according to the guard statements.

According to the accounts reported in the NCIS and CITF investigations, not one of the three detainees exhibited any sign of life from the moment they were discovered, throughout the medical response, until they were declared dead at the clinic or the hospital. Each detainee is described as having an airway obstructed by a piece of cloth and bound hands, feet, and neck. These facts are not explained by the investigations.

Because no doctor was on staff at the time of his arrival, Al Zahrani was transported to the Naval Hospital. During the ride, the medics finally removed the cloth wrapped around the detainee’s neck, which caused the detainee to “expel[] blood from his nose and mouth.” At the hospital, the medics continued attempts to revive Al Zahrani for approximately one hour, after which he was declared dead at 01:50.

C. Autopsies

The Armed Forces Institute of Pathology conducted autopsies on each detainee on June 10, 2006, the day of their reported deaths. The autopsies report that each detainee was discovered at approximately 00:20. The detainees’ bodies began arriving at the clinic 28 minutes after discovery. All three had arrived by 00:58. The autopsy report for each detainee lists the manner of death as suicide by hanging. The evidence of hanging is based upon the ligature that was found wrapped around each detainee’s neck and the circumferential dried abrasion furrow around the neck. The furrow is described as being imprinted with the very fine weave pattern of the ligature, creating an inverted “V” on the back of the head consistent with a hanging victim.

The autopsy report describes the detainees’ condition at the time of discovery as “in rigor mortis.” Rigor mortis is considered to be an indication of death and no amount of resuscitation offered after it sets in will be effective.¹⁵⁰ Both autopsy reports for Al Tabi and Ahmed state that the detainees were dead at least two hours prior to discovery.¹⁵¹ The autopsy of Ahmed also revealed a broken hyoid bone.¹⁵² The hyoid is located within the neck and is a distinct sign of manual strangulation when broken.¹⁵³

Lifesaving attempts used on the detainees included a nasal airway, an oral-gastric tube, an orally-placed endotracheal tube, an intravenous catheter, a urinary bladder catheter, and multiple electrocardiogram pads on their chests.¹⁵⁴

D. Estimated Time of Death

By the accounts of the medical examiner, all three detainees were dead and hanging in their cells for an extended period of time without being noticed. The medical examiner from the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology concludes that detainees Al Tabi and Ahmed were deceased for “at least a couple hours prior to the discovery.”¹⁵⁵ The medical examiner did not include a similar time frame for Al Zahrani, although the condition of his body was similar to that of the other two deceased detainees. Descriptions of the condition of the bodies upon discovery indicate that they were deceased for more than two hours.

1. Dried Abrasion Furrow

The government’s SJA Report contains an essay written by Dr. Dean Hawley, a Professor of Pathology at Indiana University and an expert in the field of strangulation and asphyxiation deaths.¹⁵⁶ The essay describes the creation of ligature abrasions on a hanging victim:

External injury including the dramatic “rope burns” or ligature abrasions only occur after the body has been suspended for several hours after death. If the ligature is released at the moment of death, there will be no mark in the skin.
Leave the body hang[ing] suspended by the ligature for a few hours, and a very dramatic furrow and ligature abrasion will develop post-mortem.¹⁵⁷

According to Dr. Hawley’s explanation, the presence of dried abrasion furrows on each of the detainees’ necks indicates that they were hanging post-mortem for several hours.

2. Rigor Mortis

Rigor mortis is the stiffening of the body after death.\textsuperscript{158} Rigor mortis normally presents itself between two and four hours after death and fully develops after more than six and up to twelve hours.\textsuperscript{159} It first manifests itself in the small muscles, such as the eyelids and jaw, and then gradually it spreads to larger muscle groups.\textsuperscript{160}

The guards and medics describe all three detainees as stiff with rigor.\textsuperscript{161} Not only had rigor mortis set in the detainees’ small facial muscles, but their limbs were also described as being stiff.\textsuperscript{162} Such an advanced level of rigor mortis indicates that the detainees were dead for significantly longer than two hours, all the while under continuous guard presence.\textsuperscript{163}

3. Body Temperature

The post-mortem body cools at an average rate of 1.5 degrees per hour during normal air temperatures of 70 to 75 degrees Fahrenheit.\textsuperscript{164} The rate of cooling can be affected by air temperature. The closer one’s body temperature is to the air temperature surrounding the body, the slower the rate of change in body temperature.\textsuperscript{165}

Each of the detainees was described as “cold to the touch” by no fewer than four camp personnel.\textsuperscript{166} The warm climate of Guantánamo would have slowed the body’s rate of cooling. The coldness of the bodies indicates that the bodies were hanging for a long period of time.

4. Hang Time

As described in the preceding paragraphs, there is medical evidence the detainees were hanging in their cells for a significant period of time. It is unclear how the detainees had been hanging for such a period of time when the camp’s security is predicated on procedures that the guards must follow while monitoring the detainees. “Custody and control measures maintain good order and discipline and protect the welfare of all personnel and detainees alike.”\textsuperscript{167}

There must be a continuous presence on the blocks by the guards. At no time should the block not have a guard walking up and down the block.”

- SOP 6-1(d) (2004)

The SOPs demand that the guards maintain a heightened level of vigilance and alertness while watching the detainees. “Supervision of detainees consists of much more than observing detainee conduct and activity. Supervision includes searching the detainee’s person, his billeting areas, conducting counts, conducting night inspections of billeting areas, and maintaining a high level of alertness to prevent escapes, violence, sexual incidents, or other disturbances.” To effectively supervise the detainees, the guards must maintain a “continuous presence” on the blocks.

5. Summary

The government medical examiners concluded that two of the three victims, Al Tabi and Ahmed, were deceased for at least two hours. The government’s experts, its research of the science of pathology, and its physical descriptions of the bodies, each indicate that all three victims were dead for several hours or more upon discovery. Accepting the minimum time that the government’s examiner believes the detainees were dead, the three men hung in their cells, while under continuous surveillance, for two hours.

6. June 9 and 10, 2006

The NCIS, CITF, and SJA investigations concluded that three detainees died in their cells on Alpha Block. The interviews from the investigations recount a series of events that occurred after the guards came on duty the night of June 9, including what the guards were doing before discovering the bodies, how they discovered the bodies, and the events that occurred after the detainees were found and pronounced dead.

The investigations focused on Alpha guards, including their officers, and medical personnel. In addition, the investigations included interviews of detainees, Escort Control, other officers, and six other guards not assigned to Alpha Block. Although there are hundreds of pages of interviews and information, it is impossible to discern who was responsible for walking the block when the detainees died or for failing to notice the detainees hanging for two hours. The investigation did not examine the duty roster for the night.

Because the personnel are unnamed in the investigations, each person is labeled for reference purposes according to his or her position and given a number. For example, Alpha guards are referred to as AG1, AG2, AG3, and AG4.\textsuperscript{174} The following timeline of events was created from all interviews provided in the NCIS and CITF investigations. NCIS and CITF interviewed several other guards not on duty on Alpha block that night but who witnessed some of the events that occurred.\textsuperscript{175} Some parts of the statements by personnel not assigned to Alpha corroborate some aspects of the Alpha guards’ statements. Due to their importance—and the amount of detail they contain—the Alpha Guard statements are cited more than others.

- NCIS Statement of Findings

In the weeks leading up to the three deaths, the guards and officers were on high alert. According to NCIS, there had been 44 reported suicide attempts prior to June 9, 2006, and more recent events including a detainee riot on May 18, 2006, increased the need for special vigilance.\textsuperscript{177}

Higher authorities sent out messages to guards on May 28 and May 30, 2006, to warn that a violent act might take place in the future and held trainings in order to teach appropriate procedures and “to reiterate the seriousness of the threat[s].”\textsuperscript{178} In an interview with Fox News commentator Bill O’Reilly just a day before the deaths, the Commander stated that “the detainees were planning something more violent.”\textsuperscript{179}

B. Emergency Procedures

Camp Delta has a series of procedural codes for dealing with medical emergencies such as attempted suicide or self-harm. First, the guard must call a “Code Blue,” meaning the detainee has no heartbeat and/or respiration and requires immediate medical care, triggering a response from a variety of personnel. Guard responsibilities in the event of a Code Blue include:

- Radio the location of the incident and identify it as a “Code Blue,”
- Request medical assistance at the location of the incident directly from the medical personnel,
- Render medical care in accordance with their level of training until medical personnel arrive.

The DOC will dispatch administrative personnel with video cameras and Escort Control guards to assist with the transport to the clinic.

The block NCO then ensures that at least one person continues to walk the tier, observes the other detainees, and secures the cell after the detainee is removed to prevent tampering with potential evidence. Then, the NCO must fill out a DA Form 2823 regarding the incident and ensure that all other guards complete a form. The Commander must also fill out a similar report following the incident.

C. Actions of the Guards, Medics, and Detainees Prior to Discovery of the Bodies

“There must be a continuous presence on the blocks by the guards. At no time should the block not have a guard walking up and down the block.”

- SOP 6-1(d) (2004)

All the detainees were last seen alive around 21:30 that night, according to the Alpha guard interviews. At that time, an Alpha guard was specifically assigned to walk the block. That person was not identified.

[Redacted] stated he walked the block between 2330 and 2400 or 0000 to 0030...

At 23:00, AG2 walked the block with the PL. At this time other guards did a walk-through of the block, as well. The DOC ordered a DIMS headcount at 23:35, which recorded that at 23:50, 28 detainees were “present” and “accounted for” and five guards were present on Alpha Block.

“At 2350...a headcount was conducted...”
- Name redacted

No guard noted anything suspicious while on duty at that time. Medical personnel also walked the block between 21:37 and 21:49 handing out medication to the detainees and reported nothing unusual.

On June 10, 2006, AG1 reported beginning his shift to walk the block at 00:00. Shortly thereafter, AG3 traded shifts with AG1, and AG1 returned to the guard shack while AG3 took over the duty of walking the block. AG3 reported entering Alpha Block around 00:36 to take over that half-hour shift. Shortly thereafter, he discovered Al Zahrani.

The NCO tried to pull the cloth lodged in the detainee’s mouth and throat.\textsuperscript{242} AG1 and the NCO both tried to obtain a pulse, but there was none.\textsuperscript{243} The detainee looked dead, and it appeared as if rigor mortis had set in.\textsuperscript{244} The guards placed Al Zahrani on a backboard and transported him to the medical clinic.\textsuperscript{245}

The SOG and PL arrived on Alpha Block as military personnel were bringing Al Zahrani out of cell A-8.\textsuperscript{246} The PL went to the guard shack and called the DOC requesting a medical response; no medical response ever occurred.\textsuperscript{247}

That night, however, the four block guards, the NCO, and the Platoon leader all transported Al Zahrani to the medical clinic. There are no reports of any guards left on the tier at that time. Instead of checking cells, the SOG went back to the NCO shack. The IRF Guard, who went to Alpha Block on his NCO’s orders as the Alpha guards carried Al Zahrani to the clinic, described that for that moment “the block was empty of guards because they were all attending to ISN 93.” According to the government investigation, no one noticed that there were any other detainees hanging dead in their cells.

Shortly after hearing of the first incident with Al Zahrani, the primary IRF guard waited for the call for the IRF team to respond; no such call came, nor did any other IRF guards run to get their gear from the station.

Subsequently, other guards discovered Al Tabi hanging in his cell. A few minutes later Ahmed was found in similar state. The Alpha guards arrived back on the block at this time. AG2 unlocked the door to A-12 and found Al Tabi’s body hidden behind a sheet. The other detainees on the block “were awake and verbally communicating” at this time.

Al Tabi’s condition, as described by the guards, included signs of rigor mortis, blue feet, and cold extremities. A makeshift rope was tied around his neck, and “what looked like a t-shirt…cut up to make sort of a mask” was wrapped around his face. Escort Control 2 checked Al Tabi’s pulse, but “detected no signs of life.” Guard 3, Guard 1, and Escort Control 4 all arrived to assist the IRF guard and AG4 to take him off of the tier and to the clinic.

Observing the commotion from the tier, the SOG called the tower to have the sally gate opened. After returning from the clinic, AG1 inspected the block but was not immediately able to locate Ahmed in cell A-5. When found, Ahmed had material around “at least one wrist” and “cloth material around his neck.” Escort Control 5 was “immediately struck with how deep the indentation [from the rope around his neck] was.” His body was “blue” and “stiff.”

Before being transported to the DET clinic, each of the detainees’ bodies was shackled as per the SOPs and put on a backboard. All four Alpha guards and the Alpha Block NCO left their post unattended to transport Al Zahrani to the medical clinic.

1. Medical Response for Al Zahrani

Around 00:40, a nurse at the DET Clinic received a call that a detainee with no pulse was being brought to the clinic. “Normal operating procedures state that [medical personnel] respond to the cell for medical care.” Non-medical personnel delivered the detainee to the clinic. According to statements the guards made that night, the medics did not know that the bodies were coming, the condition of the bodies, or the cause of death.

The guards described the medics as completely unprepared for and unaware of the emergency situation. The guards had to knock on the doors to get into the DET Clinic, and once inside, the “medical personnel were just standing around at first,” unsure of how to proceed. Personnel walked around casually and slowly putting on their blouses. The doctors were coming out of different rooms and “did not administer care to [Al Zahrani] for approximately two to three minutes.”

2. Medical Response for Al Tabi and Ahmed

Guards and Escort Control arrived at the DET Clinic with Al Tabi when personnel began taking Al Zahrani to the ambulance just before 01:00. Ahmed arrived shortly thereafter. No guards told the medics how the detainees were found.

“The[n] he tried to tube him but we could not get his jaw open. REDACTED used a laryoscope...blade, which is made of metal, to pry the detainee’s mouth open and in doing so broke some of the detainee’s teeth. Once the mouth was open we saw that there was a big piece of cloth lodged in the back of the detainee’s mouth. REDACTED extracted it with the forceps and it appeared to take a good amount of force to get it out. Once it was out I saw that it was folded repeatedly on itself and nearly as big as a wash cloth that was folded once in half.”

- Night Shift Team Leader at the DET clinic

The detainees’ mouths were shut so tightly that medics were unable to pry them open to clear the airway. The doctor had to use a special instrument to open each detainee’s mouth. Two combat camera personnel filmed two detainees with digital camcorders but “Colonel B told them to stop fairly quickly.”

After a half hour of administering CPR, the Senior Medical Officer (SMO) pronounced Al Tabi dead at 01:15. Ahmed received CPR for about forty-five minutes, after which a doctor arrived and tried to intubate him. Ahmed was also pronounced dead at 01:15.

3. Aftermath

Admiral Harris arrived at around 01:00 and called the medics into a meeting to give them a “pep talk” and praise their efforts, stating the detainees were most likely dead on arrival.
This meeting occurred before the Al Tabi and Ahmed were declared dead at 01:15. At that time two Escort Control guards were assigned to monitor their bodies. Between 02:00 and 03:00, both a chaplain and a cultural advisor came to and then left the clinic. Local NCIS and CITF agents arrived shortly thereafter. Sometime before 06:00, the bodies were transported to the morgue. The medical staff was relieved at 06:30.

E. Pre-Investigation Intervention

“[P]rior to finishing his report [of the incident], he was instructed to simply wait within the JDG conference room, where he was told someone would come and interview him.”

- Alpha Guard

After the detainees’ bodies had been found and transported, the Commander, Colonel
Bumgarner, ordered all guards involved in the incident to the JDG conference room in Building 1 at approximately 01:10. First, they were told to write 2823 sworn statements as mandated by the SOPs. Then, they were told not to write the 2823 statements; those who had begun writing their statements, as per the SOPs, were told to stop and go to the JDG conference room. Others never began to write their statements.

The investigation does not contain any 2823 sworn statements. Based on the nature of the incident on June 9-10, 2006, it is unclear why the Commander did not have the guards, medics, and others involved fill out sworn statements. The SOP’s require that 2823 sworn statements must be made for all such incidents immediately upon the happening of the event.

“I pulled three or four guards from Alpha block into my office to find out what had happened and put together a series of events.”

- Colonel Bumgarner

Colonel Bumgarner gathered everyone involved into the conference room. He then told everyone to sit and ordered all the guards to sign a roster and to indicate with an asterisk if they had been assigned to Alpha Block that night.

The Commander called Alpha guards aside “to put together the series of events.” He spoke with each Alpha Block guard for approximately four or five minutes. Although he reports that he knew what each guard looked like, he did not know their names. While he was certain that five people were on duty the night of June 9, 2006, “nobody could tell [him] at that time who walked the tier prior to discovering the first detainee.”

At about 02:00 hours, the Commander left the guards in the conference room so that he could brief another officer. Local NCIS, CITF, and FBI representatives arrived sometime later. Colonel Bumgarner briefed the representatives on what he knew and instructed all personnel in the room to speak with NCIS. He then went back to Alpha Block to look at the cells where the reported suicides occurred. Investigative representatives, who arrived on the scene around the same time, subsequently interviewed some guards.

F. Colonel Bumgarner’s and Admiral Harris’ Statements

On June 9, 2006, Colonel Bumgarner gave an interview to Fox News personality, Bill O’Reilly, who was at Guantánamo filming a special for his show, The O’Reilly Factor. During the course of the interview, Colonel Bumgarner painted a strikingly significant picture of Camp Delta. He stated that he believed an Al Qaeda cell was operating from inside the camp. He

After the alleged suicides, Colonel Bumgarner provided a statement on June 17, 2006, recounting his and Admiral Harris’s involvement in the night’s events. In his 11-page statement, he described his concern that the detainees were becoming more violent and the steps taken to ensure that the guards took appropriate precautions.

Colonel Bumgarner reports that on June 9, 2006, he spent the night at Admiral Harris’s home. At 00:48, the DOC called him to the Camp, and he immediately drove to the DET Clinic, following the ambulance into the Camp. Before he left, however, he called Admiral Harris to inform him that a suicide attempt had occurred. There was no doctor at the clinic when he arrived; only guards and medical personnel attended to the three lifeless detainees. Again, Colonel Bumgarner called Admiral Harris; this time stating he believed all three were dead. After the second detainee was declared dead at 01:16, Colonel Bumgarner notified the Joint Operations Center (“JOC”) of the deaths, and Admiral Harris arrived minutes later.

Colonel Bumgarner did not know how the detainees had died but he did notice the indentations on Al Tabi’s and Ahmed’s necks.

Colonel Bumgarner went further with his statement, including information about Camp 1, its rules, and the detainees housed there. He discussed the relevant SOPs in place that night, specifically describing the SOPs regulating the hanging of items in cells and prohibiting the detainees from damaging items. Guards were not to allow detainees to hang items higher than halfway up the cell or to allow detainees to damage comfort items.

“I stake my reputation and my life as a career military policeman on this. No if, ands, or buts.”

- Colonel Bumgarner

In the days following the deaths, the commanding officers at Guantánamo spoke with media regarding the reported suicides. Despite the extremely high level of security at the detention facility and the absence of an opportunity to conspire, Admiral Harris stated that the detainees committed suicide as an act of coordinated “asymmetric warfare” against the US, “not [as] an act of desperation.” Admiral Harris explained further that “the acts were tied to a ‘mystical’ belief at Guantánamo that three detainees must die at the camp for all the detainees to be released.”

Colleen Graffy, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Public Diplomacy, described the incident as a “good PR move to draw attention.”

“They [the detainees] are smart. They are creative. They are committed. They have no regard for human life, neither ours nor their own…. I believe this was not an act of desperation, but rather an act of asymmetrical warfare waged against us.”

G. Silence

The statements from medical personnel fail to show how the three detainees died. After the first detainee arrived at the clinic, the medics never asked what had happened or how he had died. They failed to ask the same questions about the second and third detainees. As each detainee arrived at the clinic, none of the guards mentioned how the detainees had died or what had occurred. From the arrival of the first body until all three were declared dead, no medics asked and no guards described what had happened on the cellblock that night.

1. Silence of the Medics

The medics, according to SOPs, should have responded to the cell block, but they did not. Instead, the guards brought all three detainees to the clinic. The medics then performed CPR on the detainees, whose mouths were locked shut and who still had makeshift ropes tied around their necks. Despite all three detainees presenting with both extreme and similar conditions, none of the medics ever asked what had happened to the detainees or how they had been discovered.

3. Silence of the Detainees provided minimal information in the interviews. Two statements provide great detail about the guard’s discovery of Al Zahrani, but do not account for the discovery of the other dead detainees moments later.

“Interviews were conducted with all detainees assigned to alpha block, however, none of the interviewees could provide any substantive information.”

- Name redacted

The detainees seemed surprised by the suicides and blamed the pressures of living at the camp under the guards’ watch. One detainee “believes the Americans are the reason for the deaths of the three detainees.” Only one statement alludes to any coordinated plan between the detainees, claiming that 40 brothers had made a commitment to die, and “they would see their commitment when doing the autopsies.”

Most of the interviewed detainees noted that they had no prior knowledge of the suicides, and if they had, they would have immediately informed the guards. In particular, one detainee stated, “[i]t is well known . . . that it is unlawful in Islam to kill oneself,” and “it was his religious duty to tell if he knew of a plan to harm oneself.” Based on the information provided in the investigations, there is no record that any detainee spoke up to prevent the detainees from harming themselves.

7. Failures of the Investigations

A. Evidence Without Findings, Findings Without Evidence

1. Evidence Without Findings

The investigations contain many pieces of evidence that are never explained or explored further. Evidence in the report stated: (1) the detainees’ hands and feet were bound when the detainees were discovered;\(^{363}\) (2) rags were imbedded deep into their throats;\(^ {364}\) (3) the detainees had been dead for hours;\(^ {365}\) and (4) the guards on duty constantly watched each of the detainees cells and reported nothing unusual during the hours between the deaths and the discovery of the bodies.\(^ {366}\)

Many interviews and other evidence in the investigative files support these four pieces of information. However, each was inexplicably omitted from the conclusions of the investigation.

2. Findings Unsupported by Evidence

The government reported that the detainees committed suicide as part of a conspiracy.\(^ {367}\) The investigations, however, fail to present any evidence of a conspiracy. In fact, all other evidence is inconsistent with the conclusion that the detainees conspired. There are three points in the NCIS Statement of Findings which are unsupported by evidence in the investigative files.

“Possible Suicide Notes”

The NCIS investigative file states that possible suicide notes were found on all of the detainees’ bodies and in their cells.\(^ {368}\) The NCIS Statement of Findings states that the similar wording of the notes supports the fact that the detainees conspired to commit suicide.\(^ {369}\) However, the language in the notes is ambiguous. The NCIS investigation states that “there is not explicit discussion of suicide in the handwritten portion” of a longer suicide note found in one detainee’s cell.\(^ {370}\) The shorter notes found on the bodies contain one sentence and are labeled “possible suicide notes.”\(^ {371}\)

Punishment for my action …They put me in Oscar isolation rooms forever”; “You did not except the tube on my nose!!! So except the rope on my neck???”
Detainees are prohibited from passing any paper between cells, and empty cells separated the three detainees from each other. Collaboration through notes would have been very difficult if not impossible.

“Representatives of other law enforcement agencies involved in the investigation were later told that on the night in question, another detainee (who did not later commit suicide) had walked through the cell block telling people ‘tonight’s the night.’”

- NCIS Statement of Findings

Anonymous Rumor: “tonight’s the night”

NCIS accepts as fact a statement from an unidentified law enforcement agency, quoting an unidentified source, describing an unidentified detainee’s statement. Its Statement of Findings concludes that a detainee walked through the cell block informing the other detainees that “tonight’s the night.” There is no evidence in the investigative files that this statement was ever made. Further, detainees are not permitted to walk through the corridors of the maximum security cell block to communicate with one another.

“...[T]here was growing concern that someone within the Camp Delta population was directing detainees to commit suicide....”

- NCIS Statement of Findings

Camp Delta Suicide Director

The NCIS Statement of Findings asserts that “there was a growing concern that someone within the Camp Delta population was directing detainees to commit suicide.” The investigative files fail to reveal who had this concern or the basis for it. There is no evidence that any steps were taken by officers or guards to identify which detainee was directing others to commit suicide. In fact, the investigative files contain no evidence of any detainee directing or coordinating suicides. Nor is there any evidence of enhanced security measures to address this reportedly “growing concern.”

Lack of Documentation

There are no documents, statements, video surveillances, log-book notes, DIMS reports, or other records that suggests a coordinated act. No guard was questioned about how the detainees could have communicated to conspire or coordinate their elaborate acts while under constant surveillance.

“The majority of the items [pieces of paper] were reviewed with only twelve (12) documents of potential evidentiary value being seized.” 378

- NCIS Investigative File

The investigation collected and reviewed 1,065 pounds of paper 379 and other means of communication, but none of it indicated that the dead men conspired to coordinate their deaths in the camp. A total of 12 documents were found to be of “potential evidentiary value.” 380 There is no indication which 12 papers were of interest or what information these 12 pages contained. The NCIS Statement of Findings, however, did not mention those 12 documents, indicating that they did not provide any valuable evidence that the three men coordinated suicides or conspired in an act of “asymmetrical warfare.” 381

“No information relating to future acts of imminent violence or threats to national security were found.” 382

- NCIS Investigative File

Evidence Inconsistent with Conspiracy

The investigation fails to mention that Al Tabi was cleared for transfer to his native Saudi Arabia and scheduled to leave Guantánamo before the end of the month. 383 Additionally, Ahmed was not brought to the cell block until 72 hours before his death, 384 which would seem to reduce his opportunity to conspire.

Although the three men were in the same cell block, they were not in adjacent cells and were separated by empty cells, making it difficult to communicate. Only the SJA report includes any information regarding the set up of Alpha Block, which housed 28 detainees who were supervised by five guards. All three detainees were housed on the same side of the cell block in cells A-5, A-8 and A-12. Two vacant cells separated A-5 from A-8. One vacant cell and two occupied cells separated A-8 from A-12.

“[T]he detainees are not allowed to talk to each other.”

The investigative file contains no evidence of either oral or written communications between the three detainees or any others or any evidence to show how the three would be able to coordinate all the necessary preparations for committing suicide simultaneously.

B. Defective Interviews

The investigations rely upon information provided in interviews and statements from a wide variety of guards, escorts, medical personnel, and officers on duty that night. However, the investigation does not determine which guards were responsible for failing to notice suspicious activity that led to the deaths of the three detainees. The interviews of the Alpha guards do not systematically review the events of the night or provide information regarding the most troublesome problems.

1. Tainted Interviews: Commanding Officer

Immediately after the first detainees were declared dead, the Commander gathered everyone involved that evening. At the meeting in the conference room, he ordered all the guards to sign a roster and to indicate with an asterisk if they had been assigned to Alpha Block that night. Then the Commander brought three or four of the Alpha guards aside to put together “the series of events,” and he spoke with each of them for approximately four or five minutes. He took no notes and did not record the names of those with whom he spoke. He said that he thought that he could recognize their faces but that he did not know their names. There is no record of what was said at this meeting, and neither the Commander nor the guards were ever asked what took place at this meeting.

2. Investigating Officers Unable to Identify Those Responsible for the Detainees’ Ability to Commit Suicide

Another defect in the investigations is the failure to determine which personnel were responsible for the detainees’ ability to commit suicide.

- The Investigating Officer was never able to determine which guard or guards were responsible for the detainees’ ability to commit suicide without being seen. 395
- The Commander reported that he could not determine who had been walking Alpha Block that night just prior to finding the first detainee hanging. 396
- NCIS could not determine which guards were responsible for the detainees’ ability to complete the steps necessary to commit suicide in the manner described without being detected. 397

While no investigative body could determine which guards were responsible for the detainees who died that night, there were only seven people who were assigned to guard them: the Alpha guards, the NCO and the PL.

3. Superficial Guard Interviews

The investigations did not include systematic interviews of any of guards who were or should have been on duty that night during the time leading up to the detainees’ deaths. While CITF interviewed four Alpha guards in the hours after the deaths, the interviews—which an investigator wrote to recount the guards’ statements—contain little information regarding what each saw and did before the discovery of the bodies. 398 Those four guards did not give more detailed first-person accounts of what happened until four or five days later. 399 The PL, however, was not interviewed at all on June 10, and did not provide any statement until four days after the incident. 400 Additionally, the June 10 interview of the Alpha NCO was only a paragraph long, written by the interviewer, and contains no information regarding the events leading up to the discovery of the bodies, despite the NCO’s presence on the block throughout the evening. 401 The NCO did not provide a first-person statement until five days later. 402

It is unclear why the investigators would not try to obtain more information from the seven key persons sooner, as these individuals were in the best position to provide information necessary to the investigation. The interviews did not provide detailed information as to what the guards observed about the detainees and the other guards that evening. There was no systematic attempt to reconstruct what each guard experienced from the time that he or she came on duty until the bodies arrived at the clinic to show how suicides could have occurred on the block.

4. Unasked Questions

The interviewers did not ask the guards or other personnel specific questions about evidence obtained during the investigation. Specifically, those interviewed were not asked:

- If he or she had observed the detainees hanging in their cells or what would have prevented the guard from seeing three dead bodies hanging for two hours
- If he or she noticed the blankets hanging up in the cells, and if so, why he or she did not inquire about them
- If he or she had observed detainees tearing up or braiding cloth, or preparing mannequins in their bunks
- How and where the detainees each obtained sufficient amounts of cloth to hang up to block the guards’ vision and to braid nooses and other bindings
- How and where the detainees each obtained sufficient amounts of comfort items necessary to make mannequins that looked sufficiently life-like to deceive the guards into believing that the detainees were asleep in their beds
- If he or she observed any note-passing between the detainees or heard any communications between the detainees that night or previously

5. Interrupted Investigation: Afternoon of June 10 to June 14

The local NCIS and CITF investigators conducted some interviews on June 10, but they are written in the third person, unsigned, and do not take the form of official sworn statements. The Miami NCIS investigative team was flown in on the afternoon of June 10, but there is no record of any investigative action taken by the investigative team until June 14. Further, the NCIS investigative file does not explain the gap between the last interview on June 20 and the next interview on July 11.

There is no evidence of any investigation by any other investigative body, including local CITF, during the period of June 11-13, 2006. NCIS conducted interviews and collected statements from June 14-17, with several follow-ups later in July. The later statements contained 404 One guard did notice that Al Zahrani had a blanket hanging up covering part of his cell at 20:30, but the statement contains no further information as to why the guard did not ask the detainee to take them down as it blocked the view part of the cell. See NCIS 964.

405 The SOUTHCOM file contains two interviews dated June 12, 2006 from the Department of the Navy. While these interviews contain handwritten page numbers indicating they belong in the combined investigative file, the interviews were not conducted by NCIS or CITF officials. SOUTHCOM at 525-529.
in the NCIS file are first-person narratives of the events of that night and include some information of what happened before discovery of the three men, how they were discovered, and some of the events that occurred in the hours thereafter. 406

6. Questionable Framing of the Interviews and Statements

There is reason to suspect that the interviewers designed questions to obtain particular results. The interviewers failed to frame their inquiries neutrally. For example, the PL stated that he did not remember if he had walked the cell block that night. An interviewer advised him that other guards had said that the Platoon Leader had walked the block that night; the PL said he still could not remember doing so, but “he said he would ‘go with’ that account, if that was what the others remembered.” 407

“[Redacted] maintained that he still could not remember [if he had walked the block]. ... He then admitted to walking all the way to the end of A-Block and back.” 408

- Name Redacted

Additionally, the guards’ first-person narratives often describe what they did not see. Instead of describing the scene, they explicitly state what they did not notice. For instance, one guard explains, “I did not see anything in his mouth.” 409 Another states, “I do not remember any bindings around his ankles.” 410 This suggests that the investigators (or others) had directed the guards’ attention to those questions. While these types of questions are acceptable, they are appropriate only after the interviewer has first elicited the interviewee’s complete recollections.

C. False Statements

As of June 14, 2006, all four Alpha guards assigned to Alpha Block that night, the Alpha Block NCO, and the Alpha Block PL were informed that he or she was suspected of making false official statements and/or failing to obey direct orders. 411 There is no evidence of the contents of these statements, what they were, or the time and place they were made. The investigation does not indicate what prompted the suspected false statements and failures to obey direct orders. No evidence of any disciplinary action taken as a result of these false statements exists.

Each guard was advised to sign the following:

1. I have the right to remain silent and make no statement at all;
2. Any statement I make can be used against in me in a trial by a court-martial or other judicial or administrative proceeding;
3. I have the right to consult with a lawyer prior to any questioning. This lawyer may be a civilian lawyer retained by me at no cost to the United States, a military lawyer appointed to act as my counsel at no cost to me, or both;
4. I have the right to have my retained lawyer and/or appointed military lawyer present during this interview; and
5. I may terminate this interview at any time, for any reason.412

If convicted of making a false statement under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, a person “shall be punished as a court-martial may direct,”413 which can include reprimand, fines, forfeiture of pay and allowances, demotion, restriction to confined limits, hard labor without confinement, confinement with hard labor, and punitive separation, including dishonorable discharge.414

Several of the guards’ interviews appear in consecutive pages as a set. “Military Suspect’s Acknowledgement and Waiver of Rights” forms are included with six statements of guards who were on Alpha block that night.415 This form appears before each of their respective “sets” of interviews and is signed by the designee.416 The four Alpha Block guards signed these waivers the same day that they made the first statements included in the report—June 14 or 15. Thus, it appears that the suspected false statements were made sometime before June 14 or 15.

D. Missing Evidence

The investigators conducted many interviews to gather information. The report, however, does not include:

- Sworn statements on required forms
- Serious Incident Reports
- Surveillance video
- Audio recordings
- Duty roster
- Detainee transfer book
- Pass-on book
- DIMS system information
- Statements from additional witnesses, including tower guards

1. Missing Sworn Statements

The SOPs require all personnel involved in incidents to write sworn statements (DA 2823 form).\(^ {418} \) Initially, some of those involved in the incident were asked to do so. No sworn statements were available for the NCIS investigators, however, because personnel were then ordered to stop writing them.\(^ {419} \) No explanation was given as to why they were ordered not to follow this standard procedure. The investigative file does not comment on this or contain the partial statements.

2. Missing Surveillance Video and Audio Recordings

NCIS was provided all videotapes on or about June 13, 2006, but there is no mention that NCIS reviewed them. It is clear from a statement by Rear Admiral Mark H. Buzby that hallway and common area video monitoring at Guantánamo is standard practice. A memorandum dated June 15, 2006, confirms that SOUTHCOM delivered “a videotape of the events of 10 Jun 06….The video is the only tape the command holds relating to the events under investigation.” Aside from the two memoranda in the SOUTHCOM file that mention delivery of the videotapes to NCIS, the government never refers to any videos in the investigative documents.

Further, audio recordings of the radio and telephone calls were not reviewed. Despite reviewing the June 9 DIMS headcounts recorded in the system, NCIS could not determine which guard made the headcounts.

At Camp Delta, successful operation depends on accountability. “Supervisors must know where assigned detainees are and what they are doing at all times.” Everything that occurs must be documented by the guards, including: suspicious activity, meal consumption, missing or damaged equipment, detainee behavior, detainees’ attempts to harm themselves, headcount times, headcount performers, instances when guards randomly walk the block together, instances 424 The Dictaphone recording system, which records emergency calls throughout the camp, was reported to have been inactive and not available for the investigators to review. Because the Dictaphone was deactivated, it did not record any calls from 03MAY06 until about 2100 on 10JUN06, when power was restored during maintenance.”).

when a search is conducted, instances when a response team is called, or when any major incident occurs.\textsuperscript{427} Most of this information was not reviewed.

A duty roster listing every shift of all guards on Alpha Block and elsewhere is required and must be maintained.\textsuperscript{428} That night, instead of looking to the duty roster, the Commander asked those guards who were on Alpha Block to place an asterisk next to their names.\textsuperscript{429} No duty roster was subsequently produced in the investigative file.

While NCIS investigators did look into the log book from that night, which documented the entry and exit of persons from the block, a page from June 10, 2006 had been removed from the book.\textsuperscript{430} Although this was noted and the book was seized, questions remain as to who had entered Alpha Block during the undocumented time period on June 10.

Additionally, the investigations did not address or reproduce the pass-on book for Alpha Block for that day or night. All activity must be noted in the pass-on book, which is passed from one shift to the next to provide information of the prior happenings on the block.\textsuperscript{431}

All data and documentation regarding the detainees and the cell blocks is also entered into the DIMS. “All documentation needs to answer Who, What, When, Where, Why, and How.”\textsuperscript{432} To ensure that the Block NCO knows the total number of detainees on the cell block and their ISNs when he or she is assuming his or her shift, the guards must complete the Detainee Alpha Roster and enter it into the DIMS.\textsuperscript{433} This further verifies that the Block NCO knows exactly which detainees he or she is responsible for during his or her shift.\textsuperscript{434}

The roster of detainee location for that night, however, was not investigated, addressed, or provided in the file to determine whether or not the deceased detainees may have been removed from their cells at some time during the day or night.\textsuperscript{435}

4. Missing Witnesses

Many guards, escort control, medical personnel, and officers on duty that night were interviewed. The investigation does not contain any interviews, however, with any personnel in the Detainee Operations Center or in the nearby guard towers who had visual access into each camp.\textsuperscript{436} Only one member of the IRF team, one Sally guard, and few guards from other blocks who saw bodies were interviewed or asked to make a statement. The investigators did not interview any of the guards recalled to the camp for their observations of the detainees on Alpha block in the aftermath of the incident.

5. Missing Serious Incident Reports

According to SOPs, Serious Incident Reports are used when an event occurs that requires the use of force, such as a cell extraction or in cases of attempted suicides.\textsuperscript{437} The Commander will complete the Serious Incident Report and will forward it to the CJDOG.\textsuperscript{438} These would have been required for June 9 and June 10. The investigative file does not contain any record of Serious Incidents Reports despite SOPs mandating this procedure.

E. Impenetrable Presentation

The way in which the investigative files are presented makes it difficult to understand how the investigation was conducted. It produced more than 1,700 pages of interviews and information regarding the events of June 9 and 10, but the evidence obtained as presented is virtually impenetrable.\textsuperscript{439} Pages are missing, paragraphs are redacted, and documents with information are disorganized, making it difficult to review any of the evidence obtained through the investigations.

Over one third (35.8 percent) of the pages are fully redacted, and another 22.7 percent has more than half of its information redacted. In fact, only 13.3 percent of the pages have not been redacted at all, and of that number, 47 pages are Deleted Page Information Sheets ("DPIS").\textsuperscript{440} Some of the DPIS pages refer to documents not released by the DOD. The NCIS investigative file contains only handwritten page numbers, but where pages are missing, a DPIS alerts the reader to sections of the text that must be obtained from another file. These sheets indicate that the NCIS, CITF, and SOUTHCOM investigative files are meant to fit together into one combined investigative document.

The CITF and SOUTHCOM documents all contain typed page numbers appearing at the bottom of each individual document. Some of the pages in those files also contain different handwritten page numbers, similar to those on the NCIS investigative file, next to the typed page numbers. The handwritten page numbers range from 1 to 1,426, and when all the pages are combined and in order, the document becomes one complete investigative document that includes sections from all three separate investigations.

The order of the pages hinders the reader in understanding the events of that night. There is no table of contents, no index, and no indication that the last page is the end of the investigative file. While all written page numbers are accounted for by the DPIS pages, it is impossible to locate those pages in the other investigative files due to the large number of fully redacted pages in those documents. Some DPIS sheets refer to documents unreleased by the DOD, including information from the Armed Forces Medical Examiner. A few refer to documents from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which the military does not have the authority to release.

F. No Disciplinary Action Recommended Despite SOP Violations

“...[D]isciplinary action is not warranted in this case.”

- Admiral Harris

Six weeks after the incident, Admiral Harris appointed an independent Investigating Officer to conduct an additional investigation to determine whether any guards violated SOPs before, during, and after the detainee deaths. As a result, Admiral Harris determined that no disciplinary action would be or should be instituted against the guards who were responsible for the detainees during the hours before they were discovered dead. Admiral Harris did concede, however, that several SOP violations occurred that night.

It took three months to complete the investigation. The report was finally released a year and a half later on or about April 28, 2009.

Notes:

441 For example, one DPIS sheet on page refers the reader to “Page(s) 478-727 Enclosures (A)-(B)” and states “Referred to SOUTHCOM” under the “Comments” lines on the page. However, the SOUTHCOM document does not contain any pages with those handwritten page numbers. Because there are so many fully redacted pages in the document, it is possible that these pages have been redacted.

443 See DPIS in NCIS for 17-24, 72-158, 1132-33, 1135-36, 1154-68, and 1171-1200.

CONCLUSION

On June 10, 2006, three men died under questionable circumstances. The investigation into their deaths resulted in more questions than answers. It is unclear how such a reputable investigative service produced such an incompetent investigation. The Center for Policy and Research is unable to resolve whether the facts led to the investigation or the investigation led to the facts. What is clear is that the true circumstances surrounding the detainees’ deaths cannot be discerned from the investigative file or the statement of findings. Without a proper investigation, it is impossible to determine the circumstances of three detainees’ deaths.

Dates of Statements and Interviews

Statements were matched according to identifying facts that appeared in similar statements in the NCIS and CITF files. Patterns were found in the way the statements were grouped in the larger NCIS file according to the handwritten page numbers. The statements for each guard appear primarily in consecutive page numbers. The type of guard was redacted from most statements but could be discerned from the actions and statements of the individual being interviewed. All page numbers refer to the handwritten numbers at the bottom of each page.

Pictures from the Department of Defense

The Department of Defense released several photographs from Camp Delta taken April 5, 2006 by U.S. Army Sgt. Sara Wood. Although the location of the cells is unknown, including from which block they are taken, the pictures provide insight into what the cells, cell-block, and other areas of camp look like. It is unknown whether the any of the cells in the following pictures resemble or are actual cells from Alpha Block.

Admiral Harris’ Conclusions

Admiral Harris wrote out his findings after the SJA Report was completed. Specifically, those findings were (SJA 1-2):

1. Admiral Harris accepted that the violation of [redacted SOP(s)] contributed nothing to the ability of the detainees to commit suicide.

2. Admiral Harris rejected the conclusion that the violation of the SOP regarding guard coverage contributed nothing to the detainees’ deaths. Instead, he concluded that the uninterrupted gap in guard coverage on the tier may have contributed to the detainees’ suicide preparation.

3. Admiral Harris accepted that the violation of [redacted SOP(s)] contributed nothing to the detainees’ ability to commit suicide. However, Admiral Harris concluded that this violation was not insignificant. Admiral Harris directed the JDG to institute procedures to “ensure accountability in this process in the future.”

4. Admiral Harris rejected the investigator’s underlying conclusion. Admiral Harris found that the SOP violation regarding head counts could not be ruled out as contributing to the ability of the detainees to commit suicide.

5. Admiral Harris accepted that the violations of [redacted SOP(s)] and [redacted SOP(s)] potentially contributed to the ability of the detainees to commit suicide; however, he found that it is possible that the detainees could have successfully committed suicide even in the absence of any violations.

• Escort heard the guard say, “A5 is not responding”

| At the Naval Hospital        | • Doctors worked on 093 trying to revive him, from roughly 01:15 to 01:50 by adding medicine to the IV and applying more chest compressions; however their efforts were fruitless
• Escort explained to a commander on the phone that they were still trying to revive 093
• Commander called two more times and others answered the phone
• A doctor at the hospital pronounced 93 dead at 01:50
• Medics put a blanket over his body
• A sergeant told the Escort and his partner to return to the camp |
| Back at the Camp later that night and the next morning | • Camp was chaotic, alive with activity
• All of the escorts and block guards were recalled
• All of those involved were directed to one of two locations to be interviewed by the NCIS
• Half of them went to the Detention Operations Center and half to another location to be interviewed by the NCIS
• An NCIS Special Agent interviewed the escort at DOC
• Escort asked to stay at the DOC for a while after being interviewed
• Escort took a friend home because she was sick and left just before 05:00
• Escort’s friend, another guard who worked at Sally Four, was crying and vomiting |
| Escort Control                | Singing earlier
• Escort was working with a partner at about that evening 18:30, going from Gold Building to Foxtrot Block
- Escort heard loud singing from entire block
- Escort notes that the singing was unusual because normally only a few detainees would sing at one time
- Escort arrived at Foxtrot Block and dropped off the detainee
- Escort asked a guard who was standing near a translator what was going on
- Translator did not specify what they were singing about
- Escort returned to the duty station
- Escort left the duty station for “fresh air” at 22:30 PM while the singing continued

Call and leaving for 588
- Around 00:45 a call came into Escort Control
- Approximately 2 minutes later, a team was dispatched to the location
- Someone came to the escort control and asked for more help
- Escort and his partner responded to the Alpha Block to assist
- Escort went to get restraints
- Some guards were standing in around a cell of detainee number 588
- Detainee was already down on the deck with his head towards the rear of the cell
- Another person said, “There is another one here,” or something similar, referring to A-5
- Approximately three guards left the cell and responded to A-5
- Escort went to get a stretcher by the front shack of Alpha Block
- Escort returned to 588’s cell and put the stretcher halfway into the cell door
- Escort assisted in moving the detainee to the stretcher by his ankles

At the Clinic
- Escort helped carry 588 to the “hospital” and placed the detainee on a bed
- Escort stayed while the other guards returned back to Alpha Block
- 3 corpsmen entered and performed CPR on the detainee
- A corpsman put an IV in his arm
- Escort assisted by keeping the CPR performing corpsman from falling off the bed
- Escort also saw a black female lieutenant bring in the electrodes and shock the detainee three times with no response
- Doctor in civilian clothes entered the room
- Doctor tried to open the detainee’s mouth to give him medical attention but it was too stiff to open
- Doctor pronounced the detainee dead at 01:15
- All the corpsmen left the room; the escort remained with the body
- Escort was relieved at about 01:30 and told to watch 093 at the hospital

At the Naval Hospital
- Escort and the person he was with were told they were not needed

Later that night / and the next morning
- Escort was told to relieve one of the three escort guards watching the two bodies
- Escort relieved him and documented who entered the room
- NCIS investigators, along with combat camera personnel, later entered the room and the escort turned over his documentation
- Bodies were put into bags and moved to the morgue by ambulance
- Escort and others were no longer needed so they went back to escort control

Statements regarding procedures
- Based on the escort’s training, nothing should be hung above the beanhole
- In some blocks there is a blackline painted on the fence of cells indicating that nothing can be hung above the line
- Based on the escort’s experience, each camp is operated differently
- Escort has seen blankets and other items hanging before but he never saw items hung as high as the night the suicides took place

Escort Control (NCIS 1044)
- Guard from Camp One ran into the escort area and requested all personnel on Alpha Block
- 693 had already been placed and strapped on a medical backboard
- Escort helped move 693 to the Detainee Clinic

At the DET Clinic
- Escort helped take the detainee to the last room and placed his body on the bed and shackled one arm to the backboard per the standard procedures
- Someone initiated CPR and another person provided artificial respiration
- CPR was performed on 693 for about 45 minutes
- A doctor on staff who was wearing civilian clothes entered the room and tried to intubate 693
- The doctor could not open the detainees mouth with his hand, so he used a special tool
- The doctor intubated 693 and another medical corpsman resumed CPR for another 20 minutes
- More officers and medical staff arrived at the Clinic
- A Navy Lieutenant came in and inspected the detainee for vitals, then called the time of death
- Escort and another placed both bodies in one room and were instructed to stand guard over them

- Blue face
- Stiff arm
- No pulse
- Something was stuck in detainees mouth

False Statement and Failure to Obey Direct Orders

The interviews for each individual guard are grouped together in the NCIS file, appearing for the most part in consecutive pages. Included among the interviews are forms titled, “Military Suspect’s Acknowledgement and Waiver of Rights,” which appear before each of the four Alpha Guards’ interviews and the Alpha NCO’s and Platoon Leader’s interviews. These forms follow the June 10 CITF interviews, except in the case of the Alpha NCO, where the form appears before his June 10 NCIS interview, and before the June NCIS first-person written narratives.

Copies of the forms are reproduced in the following pages.

Discount of the NCIS Statement on Detainee Suicides

The 2-page summary released by the Department of Defense in August 2008 leaves many questions unanswered regarding the three deaths at Camp Delta. The investigative materials do not corroborate the NCIS summary statement. In fact, this summary directly contradicts the investigative materials released by the DOD. After twenty-six months of “investigating” the incident, this summary leaves much unanswered. Set out below, statement by statement, are the findings from the investigation materials that contradict the NCIS Summary Statement.

NCIS closes investigation into the 2006 deaths of three Guantanamo Bay detainees; investigative reports released

NCIS Statement of Findings in italics:

“On June 10, 2006 the Naval Criminal Investigative Service (NCIS) was notified that three detainees being held in Camp Delta at Guantanamo Bay Cuba had been found unresponsive in their cells at approximately 12:30 a.m., apparently having taken their own lives by hanging themselves with braided rope made from bed sheets and tee shirts.”

“Five block guards were on duty at the time of the deaths. Blankets and sheets had been used to obstruct the guards’ views and to create the appearance that the detainees were asleep in their cells.”

As evidenced from medical reports and guard observations, the detainees were in a state of rigor mortis at the time of their discovery, indicating they were dead for at least 2 hours prior to discovery.\(^2\) Rigor mortis takes anywhere from 2-4 hours to set in, and it starts in the small muscles first. Thus, for rigor mortis to begin the detainees must have died at or prior to 22:30.\(^3\)

Blankets and sheets hung from the ceiling was unusual and against SOP regulations, so while the blankets would obstruct the guards’ view, they would also alert the guards to unusual activity.\(^4\) If the block guards had been following Standard Operating Procedure – locating movement or skin within each cell while walking the block – it is impossible for not just one, but three detainees to have been hanging for such a substantial period of time.\(^5\)

“Two of the detainees-- Ali Abdulla Ahmed, from Yemen, (DOB August 1, 1979) and Mana Shaman Allabard al Tabi of Saudi Arabia (DOB Jan 1, 1976) were determined to be dead at the scene.”

Unless the detainee clinic is considered part of the “scene,” the detainees were not determined to be dead at the scene; there was no medical crew on the block to pronounce the detainees medically deceased.\(^6\) They were pronounced dead at the clinic at least thirty minutes after their removal from Alpha block.\(^7\)

“Lifesaving attempts were begun on the third detainee--Yasser Talal al Zahrani of Saudi Arabia (DOB Dec 26, 1983) who was transported to Naval Hospital Guantanamo where he was pronounced dead a short time later.”

According to some reports, this detainee was not pronounced dead at the Naval Hospital until 01:50, over an hour after his discovery.\(^8\)

“The detainees had last been seen alive at approximately 10:00 pm on June 9, 2006.”

The last time any guard stated having seen all three alive was at 20:30.\(^9\) Additionally, this does not corroborate the condition of rigor mortis, which shows the detainees were likely dead before this time. Although the detainees could have been alive at this time, it is unclear whether they were seen alive in their cells or at another location. The DIMS record indicates all detainees were “accounted for” at 23:47; however, it is unclear whether they were in their cells or elsewhere.\(^10\)

“NCIS Special Agents based at Guantanamo were notified when the deaths were discovered and were on scene in the cellblock by 1:00 a.m.”

NCIS could not have been notified of the deaths and have arrived on the cellblock by 01:00 if the detainees were pronounced dead at 01:15 or later.

“Five Special Agents from the NCIS Southeast Field Office Major Case Response Team based in Mayport Florida were dispatched and arrived on scene at approximately 3:30 pm on June 10.”

“Though there were three detainee deaths it was determined that the best course of action was to combine the three incidents into a single investigation.”

“Autopsies were performed by physicians from the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology at Naval Hospital Guantanamo on June 10 and 11. The manner of death for all detainees was determined to be suicide and the cause of death was determined to be by hanging, the medical term being “mechanical asphyxia.”

“A short written statement declaring their intent to be martyrs was found in the pockets of each of the detainees.”

“Lengthier written statements were also found in each of their cells.”

“Due to similarities in the wording of the statements and the manner of suicides, as well as statements made by other detainees interviewed, there was growing concern that someone within the Camp Delta population was directing detainees to commit suicide and that additional suicides might be imminent.”

“Representatives of other law enforcement agencies involved in the investigation were later told that on the night in question, another detainee (who did not later commit suicide) had walked through the cell block telling people ‘tonight’s the night.’”

There is no evidence or report in the investigative documents indicating this incident of a detainee walking through a cell-block. If the detainees are locked in their cells, it is not possible for a detainee to walk through the cell block telling people “tonight’s the night.” Further, detainees are not allowed to talk to one another, and if a guard heard a detainee make this statement, that raises the question of why the guard would take no action based on the statement.

“The cells of other detainees were searched during the week following the suicides in an attempt to find evidence regarding whether the suicides had been part of a larger conspiracy which might result in additional detainees also taking their lives.”

“During those searches a number of documents were seized as evidence and taken from the cells for translation and analysis. Those documents included additional handwritten notes found in cells other than those where the suicides took place.”

“Those documents filled 34 boxes and 1 bag. Their combined weight was 1065 pounds.”

“Due to the volume of material seized, and concerns that numerous documents stamped with ‘ACP’ might possibly be protected by attorney client privilege, the NCIS Special Agent in Charge of the Southeast Field Office, directed that the documents be sealed and set aside until a process could be created to review the documents in a way that did not violate any attorney-client privilege.”

“With the assistance of the Department of Justice and consistent with orders of the federal District Court in Washington, D.C., the Department of Defense appointed a ‘walled off’ team of individuals who were not involved in any other detainee cases or proceedings to determine whether any of these seized documents were relevant to the investigation and, if so, to provide them to investigators unless they were protected by an attorney client privilege. Although this team did provide documents to investigators, no attorney-client privileged materials were included and this team did not reveal any attorney-client material to anyone involved in the investigation.”

“That team was activated on October 23, 2006 at the Regional Legal Service Office at Naval Air Station Mayport Florida.”

“The team consisted of an NCIS Supervisory Special Agent from Cherry Point North Carolina, four Naval Officers from the Judge Advocate General’s Corps, 2 Naval Enlisted Administrative personnel, four foreign language translators, one NCIS evidence custodian from the NCIS Southeast Field Office and one additional NCIS Special Agent based at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center in Glynco, Georgia.”

“The NCIS investigation was conducted on behalf of the US Southern Command (USSOUTHCOM).”

This summary focuses on the documents seized from all detainees’ cells and the process for investigating these papers.

“It is not unusual for an NCIS death investigation to remain open for a year or more due to a number of factors. Those factors include but are not limited to: the number of parties involved in the case, any unique characteristics of the incident location and environment, the amount of evidence collected and the level of effort involved in analyzing that evidence, and the level of supervisory case review given each investigation.”

“The Naval Criminal Investigative Service, as its name implies, is a fact-finding entity. It does not draw prosecutorial conclusions nor make recommendations regarding potential courses of action which could result from the investigative findings.”

“The NCIS case file, redacted consistent with applicable Freedom of Information Act exemptions, was provided to the Dickstein Shapiro law firm in response to their FOIA request.”
With no answers to the basic questions of who, what, where, when, why and how of this investigation, this two-page summary leaves many questions unanswered as to how three detainees were able to commit suicide by hanging, and remain undetected for at least two hours.

The Men Who Died

In the months prior to his death on June 10, 2006, Mani Sharan Turki Al-Habardi Al-Utaybi was cleared for transfer to his native Saudi Arabia. Because of delays by the Government, his lawyers were unable to tell him of the decision, and it is therefore unlikely he was ever informed of his pending release. According to Government press releases, Al-Utaybi was detained for the previous four years because of his involvement with Jama’at al Tablighi and other undisclosed groups. The Government characterized Jama’at al Tablighi as a “militant missionary group,” though in fact, Jama’at al Tablighi is a mainstream, worldwide religious community.

Ali Abdullah Ahmed, a Yemeni national, was purportedly suspected by the U.S. Government of being a “mid- to high-level Al Qaeda operative” with access to “facilitators and senior membership,” particularly Al Qaeda coordinator Abu Zubaydeh. However, this claim was stated in a press release after Ahmed’s death, and cannot be corroborated by any available evidence. In 2005, his father obtained counsel for Ahmed and made a videotape asking his son to Tablighi members visit mosques and university campuses in small groups, often inviting young men to accompany them on their itinerant travels. Members wear distinctive clothing meant to imitate the dress of the Prophet Muhammad. Jama’at al Tablighi has a global presence. It is the largest Islamic revival movement in Great Britain, and it is planning to construct in London the largest mosque in Western Europe. It is Pakistan’s largest Islamic group. The New York Times, when describing Tablighi members in Yemen, compares them to the Jehovah’s Witnesses. Jama’at al Tablighi is also present in the United States. The Al Fala mosque in Corona, Queens, NY draws hundreds of Tablighi members from across the nation.” Id. at 8-9 (internal citations omitted).

cooperate with those lawyers. The Government reported difficulty in identifying Ahmed, blocking any meeting with his attorneys prior to his death, so he never saw his father’s recorded plea. Nonetheless, there was a suit filed on Ahmed’s behalf in December of 2005.

Yassar Talal Al-Zahrani was born on September 22, 1984, and was seventeen years old when he was arrested by anti-Taliban forces in late 2001. In press statements after his death, the Government accused Al-Zahrani of fighting on the front lines for the Taliban, facilitating weapons purchases for the Taliban, and participating in the prison uprising that occurred at Mazar-i-Sharif in Afghanistan on November 25, 2001. Al-Zahrani did not have representation by counsel during his detention at Guantánamo.

Physical Descriptions of Signs of Death

QUALITATIVE DATA METHODOLOGY

Chart data was compiled using qualitative research methods. First, each individual interview narrative (narrative) was catalogued and identified as either a guard, medical, or other narrative.

Second, each narrative was analyzed word by word categorically. If a category was identified in a description, then the narrative received a tally. For example, if a guard interview narrative said that when the guard touched one of the detainees, the detainee was cold to the touch, the narrative would receive a tally affirming that it described the detainee was cold to the touch. The following table lists the methodology for each category.

Third, each tally was totaled.

Appendix Q

Possible Suicide Notes

The investigations include copies of “possible suicide notes” found on the bodies of the three dead detainees\textsuperscript{27} as well as longer “apparent suicide notes” found in the cells of other detainees, only two of which were identified as written by the detainees who died June 10.\textsuperscript{28} All Arabic language documents in the investigative files were accompanied by English translations prepared by unnamed persons.\textsuperscript{29} This report did not seek to verify the translations’ accuracy, and accepts the government’s translations as accurate.

On several of the translations, notes from the preparer indicate opinions as to the cultural significance of the content of the documents, and most of these comments point out nonspecific indications of death. The documents in translation do speak of the authors’ souls being ready for whatever is to come, and other similar rhetoric (one describes Uncle Sam tightening a rope around the writer’s neck), so it is plausible that these documents may indeed be the “suicide notes” that the government claims them to be. However, assuming accuracy of translation, the language in these documents could also be merely reflective of the nature of Islamic religious writing.

Furthermore, there is no evidence in any of these documents of conspiracy between the three dead men. At no time do any of the documents mention meeting, or planning, or coordination of any kind. The final report simply states that the fact that all three men had written documents in their cells and/or on their persons is an indication of conspiracy, and makes no further attempt to support that conclusion.

It is also unknown how many other detainees were in possession of similar documents; materials which would have been collected at the same time as those included in the investigative files. Whether the written notes in question are suicide notes or not, their translations provide no evidence of a conspiracy between the three dead men.
